WASHINGTON COASTAL DUNGENESS CRAB INDUSTRY NOTICE

CORRECTION: Season Opening from Klipsan Beach, WA to US Canada Border

This updated notice corrects the dates when licenses and vessels designated to those licenses that started south of Klipsan can begin fishing north of Klipsan.

The purpose of this notice is to provide you with final details relative to the opening of the 2019-20 coastal Dungeness crab fishery north of Klipsan Beach.

WDFW and Quinault managers reviewed catch data from the first 31 days of the Quinault fishery yesterday. Per the terms of our co-management agreement, Quinault fishers will get a 45-day head start in the area from Point Chehalis north to Destruction Island, which results in a state season opening in the area north of Klipsan Beach on January 25, 2020.

WDFW's co-management agreement with the Quileute Tribe, uses different criteria to open the state fishery between the Queets River and Destruction Island and for the area north of Destruction Island. The agreement uses a sliding scale approach based on Quileute catch in the entire Quileute U&A for the area between Queets and Destruction Island. Given the low early season catch for Quileute, this area will open on January 25, 2020, concurrent with the opening north of Klipsan Beach.

With regard to the opening north of Destruction Island, WDFW's co-management agreement with Quileute includes a provision to ensure that there are 20 fishable days for Quileute fishers between December 1 and January 15th, prior to opening the state fishery north of Destruction Island. As of yesterday, we have recorded a total of 15 fishable days. After consultation with Quileute managers, based on the likelihood that we will have met the fishable day criteria, we have agreed to open the area north of Destruction Island on January 25, 2020, concurrent with the opening north of Klipsan Beach.

In summary, the entire area from Klipsan Beach to the US/Canada border (excluding Special Management Areas) will open to state fishers on January 25, 2020. See details below.
