Stop the grotesque bear hunting please! I oppose any hunting if bears-spring or otherwise I support a spring bear hunt. Our populations of black bears are healthy, thriving, and can handle being harvested in the spring with no detrimental effects on the population. WDFW biologists recommend it. This was voted on already. So what this is saying is if a person, group or organization can apply enough pressure or threaten officials enough, as well as help direct the opposing organization-then it becomes more about prestige, status and pandering to opposing organization than it does about what is scientifically & environmentally best for our WA bears (or any animal for that matter!) It clearly shows ego, greed $$ and need for power. I remember a time when people respected voting & the process. That's why we have voting! It's fair! So allowing ones to bully, intimidate and threaten shouldn't even be a question! Washingtonians are known for loving & respecting the earth, our environment & wildlife- we speak on climate change & global warming & Washingtonians are 1st & foremost in the fight for change! So how does killing for sport, thrill or trophies follow that motto!?!??! It doesn't fit in our core beliefs! Gov Inslee all thru Corona said "I'll always follow the science" Gov Inslee, either you do or you don't- you cannot pick & choose when to follow science & when not to! The scientific data over MANY decades clearly shows that killing these bears IS NOT the answer, beneficial & wont solve the problem. I kindly ask to keep the ban and not kill any bears. We no longer need to kill for food or warmth We are a civilized society and should act like it and NOT kill. There's many, MANY other NON LETHAL ways to deal with bear issues that does NOT include killing. With humans overreach into their habitats where do you expect them to go or what to do? Their WILD! They do not kill for sport, overdevelop land, are greedy, engage in crimes or anything humans do! They are animals on this earth, which is their home too, trying to survive! Let them live! This vote shouldn't even be looked at- it was settled last Nov. please leave the bears alone- the hunters can go to the grocery stores to eat! Hi there, just moved out of WA, but wanted to say that i think hunting is proficient tool used for conservation that WA should not be quick to eliminate. I have not seen any supporting evidence that black bears are on the decline in WA state. There is seldom a time that ive stepped into the woods and not been able to locate bear sign. The ungulate populations are on the decline and allowing spring bear hunting seems like it would put just enough pressure on the bears to save fawn/calf populations all the while not disrupting their breeding season too much. I support WA fish and game maintaining the spring bear season and hope politics can stay out of their conservation efforts. Spring hunts of black bears can kill mother bears, leaving orphaned cubs to fend for themselves. Some cubs are only a few months old and still nursing or are yearlings who are still dependent for another few months. Most orphaned cubs suffer from starvation, predation or exposure.

Some state wildlife managers falsely assert that spring hunting spares mothers with cubs because nursing mothers are the last bears to emerge from the den. However, Tom Beck, a retired bear researcher for the Colorado Division of Wildlife—along with a cohort of five other Western states wildlife managers—says that males emerge from dens a mere two to three weeks earlier than females, meaning females with cubs go unprotected.

Black bear cubs, usually born between December and February, emerge from hibernation with their mothers in April and May. Mother bears care for and protect their cubs until they are 16 to 17 months old; the family breaks up typically between May and July of the cubs' second year.

Wildlife managers say there is no way to prevent the killing of nursing females during a spring hunt. Even when states prohibit the take of nursing females, hunters kill them unintentionally: Females forage at great distances from their cubs, and if pursued by hounds, a mother will leave her cubs in a tree. Additionally, females do not bring their cubs to bait sites.

Hunters have difficulties determining the sex of bears even when they use bait or hounds, are attempting to avoid shooting females and are in close proximity. Researchers themselves have difficulties determining sex, even at short distances.

Spring bear hunts do not reduce conflicts with nuisance bears

While some wildlife managers believe that spring bear hunting is necessary to reduce the bear population and thus avoid conflicts, hunters, trappers and wildlife control agents often remove the wrong bears—they kill the individuals not involved in nuisance behaviors. Bear-resistant trash cans, hazing programs and other humane methods work better to solve problems.

Bears who come into urban areas are most frequently adult females with cubs or subadults who purposely do so to avoid aggression by other adult bears, usually males; association with people is a deliberate adaptive strategy to keep their cubs alive.

This has been tried before & has NOT worked. We are not in the 1800s, barbarians or uncivilized. Haven't we learned from history or other countries how over-hunting/killing can decimate a species, as well as the science doesn't support it. The problems & issues continue. There's a lot of other non lethal ways to help with the problems. We must learn to coexist peacefully & stop killing, decimating or trying to control everything in our path! All our WA bears are trying to do is live. Please let them. It's time for us to evolve past killing for sport! NO SPRING BEAR HUNT PLEASE THANK YOU KINDLY:)

l adamantly support the continuation of Washington State's spring bear hunt. The continuation of the hunt was supported by WDFW's biologists based on scientific facts and data collected. Facts to consider:	2/16/2022 7:30 AM	Online Survey

- Washington has one of the highest black bear populations in the lower 48 states.
- Sows and cubs are not the target. Hunters will go out of their way to avoid sows with cubs. Mature boars are the bear the majority of hunters pursue, and sows with cubs do not attract boars.
- The data collected shows that the number of lactating sows killed over the years is virtually zero
- Bears, especially in the spring, have an enormous impact on new born ungulates such as deer, elk and moose. Many of our state's populations of ungulates are struggling primarily because of an overpopulation of predators.

Lastly, bear meat is delicious and a staple for many families, including mine. We do not buy farmed meat, instead we choose to source our own organic free range meat and take responsibility for the death of the animals that feed us.

Bears are not just trophies, they are a quality, renewable food supply. Also, you are required by LAW in Washington to harvest all the usable meat from the animals we kill, so any argument stating that hunters pursue bears strictly as trophies is false.

Please also note these comments give no specifics, and repeat the same derogatory adjectives ad nauseam, as if they were lifted from an advocacy group's scripted message, or posted by the same person multiple times.

What time zones are all these people from? Probably not even the west coast, much less Washington, and definitely not the GMUs in question. They have never been in these woods, never seen these bears, and never will. They do not contribute in any way to WDFW or conservation in Washington. Please do not let the fact that rabid anti-hunting animal rights extremists have the ability to post a WDFW comment link on their facebook pages affect how you set policy, which is mandated to be for the citizens of Washington.

Spring bear hunt should not be cancelled. There are a lot of false comments in the commentary presented. Spring black bear hunting is a viable, meaningful way of managing a renewable resource without damaging the population health.	2/16/2022 8:15 AM	Online Survey
It's important to look at population's as a whole and to recognize that we are now in a place where we need to manage all animal populations. The statements about trophy hunting, not harvesting for meat, killing females and orphaning cubs are all generalizations that don't hold true in the vast majority of cases. If you do the research you'll find that the majority of bear taken are males, that the meat is regularly eaten, and that there are laws that exist against wonton waste. If the resource has a viable population, it's incumbent on the Game commission to provide opportunity.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to proposed rules CR-101 and CR-102. As a long time Washington resident, I was appalled to hear that the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife is considering rules that threaten the lives of black bears in our state. Not only is hunting in general a wholly ineffective means of "management" or "control" of wild animal populations, but endorsing and encouraging the killing of black bears during the spring is absolutely abhorrent. As I am certain you are aware, black bears are especially vulnerable in the spring, when they are desperately searching for food after a long hibernation and mothers are caring for cubs. The proposed rules will directly result black bear families being torn apart, leaving orphaned cubs to starve. Washington is one of only eight states that still allows slaughter during this critical period. Having such rules in Washington is inexcusable; Washingtonians expect m and our black bears deserve better. As such, I oppose any rules that allow a spring bear hunt.	or c

Drawing the spring bear tag previously I have first hand experience that bears aren't lethargic in the spring. Any scent or sound from a human will cause them to run for safety immediately. I was able to harvest an older sow without cubs. I watched her for about 15 mins before pulling the trigger to insure the bear didn't have cubs and was and older bear. This bear was missing most of her teeth and only had one eye. Instead of dying a slow painful death I was grateful enough to make a clean ethical shot.

The only reason it was eliminated was due to ignorance and emotion. Sows with Cubs and cubs less than 1 year old are off limits in most states, and rightfully so. Stop using language like "trophy hunters" in your proposals and reasoning. A trophy class animal does not mean it goes to waste. My freezer was full of bear meat and provided healthy organic food on my table. As far as keeping proof of sex attached to the hide, it's good in theory but very difficult on practice. As many animals I've field dressed in the past few decades, I'm not a skilled surgeon, biologist or expert on anatomy to perform this task with 100% accuracy. I deeply oppose spring bear hunting. There is already so much collateral damage to wildlife from human activity—loss of habitat, ecosystem degradation, and pollution to name a few. There are humane ways of mitigating human-bear conflict. It is also extra cruel to hunt bears during their most vulnerable season. Furthermore, the spring bear hunt contradicts the agency's own science, research, and game management plan.	2/16/2022 1:05 PM	Online Survey

Spring bear hunting and or any type of hunting needs to be based off of actual population numbers. Peoples feeling and or views about certain hunting CAN NOT dictate changes in hunting regulations or seasons. If population numbers are good than we should be able to hunt. Predators do not limit nor deplete the deer and elk in Washington. The limiting factor is political. The animals are limited by the tolerance of how much people are willing to put up with them. Wildlife science can tell you if a herd is healthy in it's allowable range. Political science decides what that range is. Social science can tell you what is tolerable by society as to wether and or how wildlife should be hunted.	2/16/2022 7:36 PM	Online Survey to harvest male bears. The spring hunt actually supports cub recruitment because boars often kill cubs fresh out of dens. I fully support the spring bear season in Washington because it supports balanced ecosystems, enhances funding for wildlife conservation, and provides a limited, sustainable big game hunting opportunity in the spring. Bear meat and fat are highly regarded by those of us who choose to hunt for our food.

100% support spring bear. Show me the science that proves it not only unnecessary but detrimental to the population. It is also entertaining how there are statements about predators not depleting the population. The predator's goal is to kill other species for their own food. The difference is predators are not limited to seasons, species or hours. They hunt and kill around the clock year round. This means that they are killing deer and elk along with other species to live. With hunters harvesting non-predatory species only the balance is swayed and deer and elk populations will inevitably decline. The solution to a balance is to harvest the predators as with other species. Do not over harvest as the predatory species are key to the ecosystem as well. However the bear population is the highest its been in decades so harvest more bears. Pure common sense that unfortunately many lack in this day and age.	2/16/2022 8:04 PM	Online Survey

1 Support the spring bear hunt: 1 100% support Spring bear. The decision to suspend the hunt was based on anti hunting rid* and emotion. Not on the large body of sound science that indicates that a Spring bear season should occur and bear populations are healthy enough to support it. In my opinion this is a very uneducated decision. The result of this decision is also insulting to our hired biologists and researchers that work hard to provide scientific data to make educated decisions. Key reasons why we need Spring bear, especially in Western Washington: One, to lower tree cambium damage to public and private timberlands. A top Spring food source for bears. Two, to reduce fawn and calf deprivation during Spring vulnerability. Bears are their number 1 predator especially in Spring. Carmen Andonaequi (senior scientist/ habitat program manager/contracted through wdfw) even has a study out on predation of elk and deer within Blues specific area. Numbers on this study show: death by black bear 16% (125 confirmed calves killed by black bear), 14% not able to identify between wolf or black bear, and 70% cougar. Three, to protect bear cubs from infanticide by ovacciously hungry and territorial boars. Four, to provide ethical hunters with an opportunity to provide food and substance for their families (as WDFW and the commission are legally mandated to do) when populations are healthy enough. Finally, because there is a huge body of science that supports all these points and absolutely nothing to the contrary. Think of the economics related to hunting. People who don't even put into the benefit(s) or funding will be effectedeven anti-hunters, small businesses, tourism, outdoor groups, etc will be affected by this loss of revenue. People don't realize hunters are the majority of funding for wdfw, conservation, studies, etc		Online Survey

Hunters are not the major funding source for WDFW buy any strech of the imagination. Fully support spring bear and spring cougar harvest. The proposed stipulation that legally prohibits the harvest of sows with cubs is neglecting to consider the difficulty of black bear hunting without the once legal methods of take such as over bait, or with hounds. With these aforementioned methods, the differentiation of a sow versus a boar was far simpler, as the methods allowed more time for observation. With current methods, the observation times available are often much shorter and can lead to an honest mistake becoming a criminal penalty. If the previously legal methods were reinstated I would support this stipulation, but as it stands I cannot. Otherwise I do generally support the management tool of a spring season.	2/16/2022 9:15 PM 2/16/2022 9:18 PM	Online Survey Online Survey

I support spring bear season Totally support springer bear hunting! With the populations currently there's absolutely no reason not to have a season. If you hunt for sport you believe in Fair Chase. If you believe in Fair Chase you hunt Big Game only in the Fall. If you hunt for meat you hunt only in the Fall when the Big Game is at it's most robust. If you are an ethical hunter you RESPECT your quarry. If you respect wildlife you do not decide that this animal is bad and another is good. Spring bear hunting is controversial because society believes it is, any science other than social science doesn't matter. There is a myth that bears are sluggish during spring bear seasons. I have never seen a sluggish bear during the season. The season is well past when they exit the den. This isn't science, just because some people make it a talking point doesn't equate to reality. The ungulate fawn/calf population needs to get a breather. We live in a modern world of reduced habitat and human encroachment. This makes management of all species imperative. We need to maintain a balance not wild swings in populations. Bear populations have been increasing for a long time. There is zero reason not to have a spring hunt. I support spring bear hunting. Stop letting people with no knowledge of wildlife make illogical comments. It's actually hysterical. Reinstate spring bear. It should have never been closed in the first place. I support spring black bear season. With all due respect, we need decisions based from professional biologists, not liberals personal feelings. comment section. The fish and wildlife commission is bound by the laws of WA State to uphold opportunity for fishing and hunting. There is no place for political and/or emotional process when the fact based science has been laid in front of the commission. But the facts supplied to the commission back in November of 2021 do not fit some of the commissioners narrative or emotional process. The Spring Bear season in WA State needs to be put in place as an annual occurrence and the commission approval should be a formailty. The Black Bear population has more than enough bears to support a Spring Bear season. The low number of tags available in the spring bear season put barely a dent in the bear population. There should be an over the counter tag allocation for the spring bear season in the Blue Mountain GMU's, and a lot of other GMU's as well.

Fully support this. Bear cubs lives matter. Fully support spring bear hunting and this rule. As an avid outdoorsman and lifelong resident of Washington State, I am in full support of trusting in the science that WDFW has provided and continuing the spring bear season in this state. The fact that we as hunters are forced to get on and fight by public comment against anti-hunting groups in order for this to happen is outright shameful. WDFW has biologists who spend their careers analyzing and curating data so they can strive to support the North American Model for Wildlife Conservation. Emotion and opinion have no place in wildlife management, the resource is to be managed based on data taken from the field and WDFW has provided data to support continuing this hunt. Spring bear hunting, fully support it and this rule. Science can tell you if a harvestable number of any animal is available. Science does decide when that can happen. Personal opinion or grievances with hunting should not factor into the decision making in what is supposed to be a non-partisan commission. Game commissioners are NOT politicians contrary to what Mr. Koontz stated in his resignation	2/17/2022 2:37 PM	Online Survey letter. The job of the commission is to "preserve, protect, and perpetuate fish and wildlife and ecosystems while providing sustainable fish and wildlife recreational and commercial opportunities compatible with healthy and diverse fish and wildlife populations" per the WDFW website. Suspending the Spring Bear season does none of those things other than push a biased and opinion driven agenda by select members of the commission. The data provided by the biologists coupled with the policies of neighboring states with similar bear populations should be used as sound science and a guide to making policy in this state. Conservation of ALL animals is important, not just of "charismatic megafauna" that some people tend to anthrpomorphise. The Blue Mountain Elk herd is case and point to this "pick and choose" style conservation. The Blue's herd (in a premiere unit might I add that generates dollars through application sales as a sought after hunt) has been decimated by predators making it a less desirable draw tag as it has been in the past. Bears play an undeniably large role in that dwindling elk population. Bears can be used as a renewable resource to generate revenue for both the state and the surrounding communities of hunt destinations. Follow the science, not your opinion. Use your brain, not your heart. I support the spring bear hunt, and the commission should as well.

permits each year for geographically focused spring hunting of black bear, that can in some instances help address other management issues such as human-bear conflict, commercial timber damage or concerns for ungulate species neonate recruitment. The changes would result in a limited, annual hunting opportunity for approximately 664 hunters who receive permits, and WDFW anticipates approximately 145 black bears would be harvested annually through this limited permit hunting opportunity. An anticipated harvest of 145 bears out of a population estimated at 25,000 is statistically insignificant and the spring bear hunt should be reinstated. Vote to bring back the spring bear season. I support the re-instatement of the spring bear hunt. Primarily because it was voted to close it based on public opinion/ emotion, instead of the science it should have been based on. One of the tenants of the North American Model of wildlife conservation is, "Wildlife policy is formulated through the use of the best available science – Science shall be the guiding principle in the development of wildlife regulations, as it provides a vastly superior management structure when compared to management based solely on public opinion and anecdotal evidence." WDFW biologists stated that all of there science supports this season remaining open. The world has spent two years advocating for the strict following of science, no matter how new, and strongly criticizing those that would rather wait a little longer to see how that science pans out. However, when it comes to Washington and bear biology, despite a history of healthy bear population and positive cases, based in biology, for a spring bear season, now we're allowing ourselves to ignore this particular science in favor of emotional stances. The facts are clear on a number of concerns:

2/18/2022 3:10 AM Online Survey

There's very few lactating sows harvested, only one last year, and based on requirements post kill, it's very easy to track that data. If hunters aren't allowed to hunt this season, culling will likely fall on the shoulders of the state to minimize timber damage. And there's a strong possibility that more boars, due to a lack of harvest, could lead to increased cub mortality, based on boars killing them.

Beyond that science, it is the duty of the Commission and WDFW to, "... establishes policies to preserve, protect, and perpetuate fish, wildlife, and ecosystems while providing sustainable fish and wildlife recreational and commercial opportunities compatible with healthy and diverse fish and wildlife populations", and, "To preserve, protect and perpetuate fish, wildlife and ecosystems while providing sustainable fish and wildlife recreational and commercial opportunities." Again, this duty should be fulfilled under the guidance of science and quality game management, not the whims of public emotion and social pressure.

Lastly, for this comment section, chiseling another chunk out of the rights and opportunities of hunters is an attack on the long held tradition and culture of hunters to pursue game for table fare, fur, and recreation. Despite a huge move away from a personal connection to your food source in this country, there are still many citizens that choose to supply their own table with food, whether by gardening or hunting. We are willing to do the dirty work of pursuing game for meat, not just depending on some farm, somewhere to do it. We desire to maintain a connection to the land and the wilderness, in the capacity that we can, to provide for ourselves. There's a great many days spent in the woods that result in no harvest; and much time invested and knowledge acquired to understand these animals and successfully harvest them once in a while. If 145 of 664 are actually successful, this is 22% success for a possible 46 days in the field at maximum, which is unlikely as that would be every day for a month and a half. Despite that some of us might enjoy that, most of us have work and other obligations in there.

In closing, I would like to repeat that I fully support the re-instatement of the Spring bear season. There's much more at hand than just taking away an opportunity for a very small amount of people to pursue and hopefully harvest a very small number of bears. Thanks for your time.

Trophy hunting is vile, antiquated and should be banned. "Predator management" is nothing more than giving a select population of people the means to kill, legally. Most often, hunters do not kill any problematic bears, and they kill	2/21/2022 10:48 AM	Online Survey females with cubs, leaving the cubs orphaned. There is no way to know which is which. If we had effective wildlife management that is fully funded and geared towards non-lethal conflict methods, populations would manage themselves.
Additionally, there is the claim that the bears and predators are killing all the ungulates. It's just not true. Habitat loss, climate change, cars, and other things kill ungulates, but humans kill the most ungulates of all. Not to mention, the most vile means are permitted, dogs, baiting, etc., these are unethical.	. / /
I support the spring bear hunt. The Anti-hunting crowd continues to refer to this as a " trophy hunt" as if hunters are killing these bears taking the head and hide and leaving the meat in the woods. Bear meat is amazing not to mention it is against the law to waste the meat of big game animals including bear and cougar. Keep the spring season in place. Most responsible hunters don't shoot sows with cubs. While there can be mistakes and carelessness, you would hope this is minimal. The number of licenses should be determined by the carrying capacity.	2/21/2022 12:09 PM	Online Survey
The problem with laws are they go into effect and it takes forever to change them. You have biologists who study carry capacity and animal count. Don't change the laws, change the number of tags based on the count. It should go up and down based on animal count. Get away from set numbers. Biologists and outdoor men and women should be able to help with year over year studies. Good Luck.

not financially invested in the wdfw, should have no say in fish and wildlife management in Washington State. With that said, I fully support this spring bear rule making change. The wdfw commission should adhere to its mandate to		· preserve, protect and perpetuate fish, wildlife and ecosystems while providing sustainable fish and wildlife recreational and commercial opportunities. The wdfw commission should not be deciding if bears should be hunted in the spring each year or not; the only decisions that should be made are season dates, and tag allocations for different units based on the scientific data presented by the biologist. The spring bear hunt controversy was simply low hanging fruit for those who do not believe bears, predators, or hunting in general on the extreme end, should be legally allowed. The commission is the wrong place for people of this mindset to push their agenda, the proper place for decisions about the morality of hunting animals in Washington state, falls on the legislature and the vote of the citizens that live in Washington state. I urge all the wdfw commissioners, now that we have a fully functioning commission that will not result in a tie vote, to abide by the wdfw mandate, and change the rule so that there is always a spring bear hunt going forward, and only season dates, and tag numbers is being voted on. All of the questions regarding issues pertaining to the spring bear hunt, such as cub mortality and sow harvest, etc, have been in the process of being resolved and will continue to be resolved. Washington bears are in the crosshairs of trophy hunters following their petition to the WDFW to reinstate a spring bear hunting season and death threats that resulted in the resignation of one of the commissioners who voted against the spring bear hunt. The threats to life which form the common denominator both human and animal in this story are entirely unacceptable in 21st century society.	2/22/2022 9:15 AM	Online Survey
I am told that spring bear hunting is exceptionally cruel as bears and bear cubs are in their most vulnerable state. They are emerging from their dens following hibernation. During springtime, hungry bears search for early spring vegetation. As such they are easy targets for bear trophy hunters who scout out locations abundant in natural food sources and wait for the hungry bears to arrive.
More recently, bear trophy hunters in Washington have been threatening the WDFW commissioners to reinstate the controversial spring bear hunt following their 4-4 vote to stop the hunt last November. The commissioners who voted to stop the hunt said the spring bear hunt contradicts the agency's own science, research, and game management plan. I am in complete agreement with them. I call on the WDFW to follow the best available science and put a stop to what promises to be an onslaught.)

Taking the hide and meat (which is required by law) makes this a trophy hunt? Mature boars are the target, not sows with cubs or cubs themselves (this rule makes something we already avoid, against the law). The spring bear season is limited in both tags and areas, only very specific areas are allowed to be hunted to help alleviate timber damage, human conflict and ungulate fawn retention.	2/22/2022 9:22 AM	Online Survey

Fully support spring bear hunting support spring bear hunting and this rule I strongly support spring bear hunting. Bear cubs agree, they support spring bear hunting and this rule so they don't get eaten by male bear. Looking forward to spring bear hunting and this rule Hunting bears can only be justified as killing for the sake of killing. It does not mitigate human/bear conflict, protect livestock, or benefit our state's ecosystems. The practice of hunting these animals is nothing more than wanton cruelty. A great time of year to bear hunt. Fully support spring bear hunting. Guess what, if you dont like bear hunting, dont do it. 1000's of families in Washington love bear meat, hides and the family times it provides. Fully support this rule. I am in full and total rejection of allowing. Spring Black Bear hunting. To support this rule is to completely ignore the expulsion of scientific evidence that biodiversity is in critical condition. Millions of species are going extinct everyday and since all life on Earth is intrinsically connected this means human life is absolutely at stake. Anyone who's actually well researched understands that bears and other predator species play a critical role in biodiversity and a livable ecosystem. It's called the circle of life for a reason. People supporting this notion that it's "okay" to hunt these bears are utterly misinformed of the catastrophic impacts of letting humans dominate and exploit this planet. Trophy hunting is devastating to the planet, completely unnecessary and objectively cruel. There are an infinite numbers of ways to enjoy oneself and spend time in the natural world that do not involve murdering other beings and destroying the balance of eco systems. I really have no idea how people are so delusional to think this is "scientifically" acceptable. We are living through mass extinction. We need to be investing a massive amount of time and resources into stabilizing the all consuming crises we've unleashed on this planet. We definitely don't need to be furthering the damage. Anyone who agrees to these madness is quite frankly unintelligent and illogical. Eut's go bear hunting! Fully support this. Hunting and fishing regulation changes should be made according to real information about species populations not inflamed feelings. Ethical take is not addressed by "leaving a population alone". It is unethical to base population control decisions on anything other than biological data collection. "Bring back spring bear hunting for Washington State 2022 season"

It is time for the Commission to bring back the 2022 Spring Bear Hunting Season.

More signatures are added to the petition every day.

Please ask the Commissioners to:

Follow the science.

Follow the recommendations of the WDFW Biologists.

Follow the recommendations of the WDFW Director.

I also understand, and I may be wrong as I am not certain, but I have heard there is a procedure by which the Commission (or possibly the process is a Commissioner who voted no on the original vote to cancel the season) may request the issue be re voted.

If there is any way the Commissioners can revote the issue, please encourage them to do so.

The science supports the spring bear hunt and so do I please vote for spring bear hunt. Thank you

I wrote the Madravenspeak living wildlife column for our hundred year old progressive newspaper in Madison, Wisconsin, for 9 years, 2011 - 2020. During that time, I did a lot of work on bears, wolves and natural predators, trophy hunting, and trapping.

Writing the various series of columns on black bear issues, I was helped by bear biologist Lynn Rogers, who started the North American Bear Education Center in 2007 in Ely, Minnesota.

Hearing that you are considering a spring bear hunt, I asked him to send me long established research on spring bear hunts which orphan hundreds of tiny cubs, who do not go to solid food from their mother's milk until mid-July. They also are not prepared to protect themselves from predators - nor do they know enough to know which foods to forage or the terrain. They emerge in March and April from dens with their mothers, as 4 - 10 pound toddlers. Without their mothers, they starve to death or are prey.

Rogers also points out that it is impossible for hunters to identify which bears are male and which are females. He indicates that lactating females with cubs have very small nipples even while lactating and their mammary glands would not show up through their fur to indicate that they are nursing mothers. They leave their small cubs in the spring, in trees, often a good distance from bait piles. Bear hunters are unlikely to pass up a bear in their sights.

Hunting bears should not be a recreation at all, as bears are very much like humans, except they are not the ones destroying the climate, hoarding billions of captive animals just grown for slaughterhouses, or trophy-killing and destroying half of life on the planet in this mass extinction, entirely human-caused. They live their lives as gardeners of the forest - peaceful denizens of the woods. Killing them for a minority of citizens to have fun, or continue cruel "traditions" is a crime against nature that should be ended.

I oppose spring bear hunting. It's cruel and unsportsmanlike. Funny how anti hunters speak of cruel and unsportsmanlike hunting but have likely never done any hunting themselves. Fully support spring bear hunting and this rule.		Online Survey Online Survey

As a nunter, one who nunts rins species, I agree with recommendations or removing the year title and adding the language regarding sows with cubs. As a nunter, I recognize that a sow with cub(s) is a nuture opportunity years down the road and most of the hunters I have been around recognize this fact as well. I recommend that the commission/department focus on education to the hunting public of the importance of the reporting requirements, especially as it helps determine the model in determining the population as it relates to days in the field and the harvest rates. Something I was unaware of until I read several reports from within the department as I research this topic. In regard to reporting, I have submitted several reports, and nothing asks where I passed on a opportunity and reason why this was exercised. While the focus is on the spring hunt, which accounted for 28% of hunter success of the available tags issued, eliminating this hunting opportunity was a step in the wrong direction. The overall harvest rates were very minimal in the overall bear harvest. Regarding submitting the pelts and head, I ask the department and commission to		Online Survey justify the requirement that it be unfrozen. Hunters must pack this around to the inspection station, which can be days after harvest. One thing that stood out in hearing, sampling criteria as it relates to overall population density, one important area that isn't considered is the coastal region, both north and south including Puget so sound region. How can the department determine the overall health of the population of this specifically published, or I was unable to locate this, I did find some information that suggests that to maintain a healthy population, a 10% of the overall population will support a healthy population. While the overall population of black bears isn't specifically published, or I was unable to locate this, I did find some information that suggests 25,000 animals or more. The reported harvest in 2019 including the spring hunt yield a harvest of 2,185 animals. Factor in other factors such as poaching, conflict resolution would suggest that we are harvesting the 10% mark. The last thing to consider is the revenue that department collects from the 35,000 licenses sold annually and the additional revenue in sales tax that sportmans provide. I can live with science in managing this species, but leaving this management to ballet box management is a step in the wrong direction. Hunting cougars with dogs provided me an opportunity to determine sex and size, now this opportunity is severely limited and based upon scouting, trail camera pictures and physical tracks.	r

Please do not let this go ahead and base your decisions on ethics and science. Do not be bullied by these people who wish to hunt for nothing more than their own sadistic enjoyment.	, , ,	,
I oppose the spring bear hunt. Spring bear hunts in Washington are exceptionally cruel since trophy hunters can kill mother bears and cubs, and the season starts as mother bears and cubs are most vulnerable emerging from their dens following hibernation. If trophy hunters kill a mother bear and spare her cubs, they will likely die without their mother present. During springtime, bears search for early spring vegetation, making them easy targets for bear trophy hunter who scout out locations abundant in natural food sources and wait for the hungry bears to arrive. As an umbrella species, bears play a significant role in our forest ecosystems. Many other species rely on their existence. Bears are also responsible for a vital amount of seed dispersal, dispersing more seeds than birds. When bear populations decline, so do the number of plant species found in their ecosystems. For all these reasons I strongly oppose the bear hunt.	2/22/2022 11:51 PM	Online Survey

I oppose spring bear hunting!

Such a cruel "sport". I oppose this spring Bear hunt. Let them live their lives.

100% support the spring bear hunt. What I see from the opposition is that they activity support the discrimination of a minority group. Repeat threats and derogatory comments show the true colors and desperate actions behind an emotional and opinion based campaign. They refuse to acknowledge the FACT that the game we hunt and the non game species have benefited from our contributions for over 100 years. They are late to the game. Follow science not emotion.

The only thing a spring bear hunt is going to hurt are people's feelings which have nothing to do with what is best for bears or the animal populations as a whole. Please don't punish law abiding, safe hunters for people's opinions on somthing they have never even read into.

The people opposing hunting would not be here if their ancestors didn't hunt. You don't see hunters freaking out when the grocery store runs out of meat. Reinstate spring bear and let hunters do what they need to do to help other animal populations grow. We have way too many predators in this state controlled by tree hugging babies.

Wild harvest where populations are sustainable of a renewable resource should be continued. This includes bears. I support the spring bear hunt.

The people opposing the spring bear hunt actually oppose all hunting. They sit there writing their comments while wearing leather shoes, leather belts and clutching their leather handbags. The hypocrisy is rank

The people who oppose spring bear are sitting behind a keyboard trying to

Blast hunters who value the bears as a necessity to feed families and maintain a good environment for other animals to develop and grow. I support spring bear hunting 100%.

Follow science and the North American Model for wildlife management. Emotion is not an acceptable way to make wildlife management decisions. I support spring bear hunting.

Please reinstate spring black bear hunting opportunities. This state enjoys healthy black bear numbers and spring black bear hunting has a long tradition and gives hunters something to look forward to early in the year.

Additionally, many Washington hunters have paid for the opportunity to hunt black bear though the draw system. Removing this hunt invalidates the investment in finding points so many of us have put in. Its not just the money, the man hours spent scouting terrain in anticipation of a shot at spring bear is the real loss of investment.

In all, the no valid reason to mediocra spring bear hunting, especially when its through a draw system.

I support science based game management for all species. Emotions have no place in deciding hunting regulations. Please reinstate the spring bear season.

I support the spring bear hunt. I support science based game management for all species. Emotions have no place in game management.

Responsible wildlife and land management are necessary to protect and preserve our natural resources. Outdoor enthusiasts, hunters and anglers primarily pay for and volunteer towards these efforts. I support the spring bear hunt as part of our culture, heritage and management of wildlife. Please reinstate the spring hunt and refrain from further special interest restrictions.

I strongly oppose this Spring Bear hunt and all bear hunting - bears are amazing iconic creatures that should be protected and preserved, not slaughtered for fun by a few sick minded people. There is no concrete evidence that culls like this do anything to reduce people - bear conflict etc. You should be proud of your bears and nurture them - not view them as a commodity to 'look forward' to killing in the spring [or any time].

I srongly oppose the cruel spring bear hunt. Spring bear hunting is exceptionally cruel as bears and bear cubs are in their most vulnerable state. They are emerging from their dens following hibernation. During springtime, hungry bears search for early spring vegetation, making them easy targets for bear trophy hunters who scout out locations abundant in natural food sources and wait for the hungry bears to arrive.

Responsible wildlife management is crucial, not cruel. If we want to maintain healthy populations of as many species as possible, then management is necessary. Plenty of examples of what can go wrong when numbers aren't managed.

Do some research people please. I fully support the soring hear hunt.

Spring bear hunting is humane, safe for the animals, and results in very few bears being harvested. There is no biological reason to disallow this practice.

I support spring bear hunting. The best wildlife conservation models that have and support wildlife are based on science and not emotion.

I strongly support the spring bear hunt. Bears are predators and need managed just like deer, elk, Mtn lions etc. This is all part of the North American Model of Wildlife Conservation. Please follow the science and data.

Strongly support spring bear hunting.

it's humorous to see the ignorance from those that oppose the spring bear hunt. Male bears are on a rampage in the spring; eating fawns, calves, and even their own offspring. I truly hope you enjoy your predators in Washington state, because if we continue to let their populations grow, you won't see any deer or elk left. You talk about beauty? Beauty is a balanced ecosystem; stop making emotional decisions.

I will never support an activity, Bear Hunting, based on disinformation and lies, and only to favor the egotism of a minority group, hunters. I beg the brave commissioners to stand up for the bears. Not only the majority of Americans will

2/23/2022 7:21 AM appreciate it, but also the upcoming generations who have the right to enjoy the magnificence of these beautiful creatures

Western Washington resident. I strongly support the spring bear hunt.

Hunting is not a cruel activity. Without hunting humans would not be here. It's in our DNA to hunt. The large majority of people hunt in a very respectful manner and have a great appreciation for any animal taken. Bear meat tastes great. 2/23/2022 7:23 AM

I strongly oppose bear hunting. If bears are attacking humans or destroying property, then we need to change OUR behaviors and mislaid priorities. * I have strong concerns about the prohibition against killing a sow with cubs. Doing so is of course a very bad thing. 100% in support of spring bear. FYI, trophy hunting is illegal. We are required by law to take all the meat from bears. To be honest we probably use more off a bear than any other game species. From the meat, hide, fat and skull it's all utilized. So your argument is once again based on emotions and zero facts. Nice try.	2/23/2022 8:02 AM	Online Survey

It' ok to poison, trap, or otherwise kill them if they are bothering us at our trophy mansions (in the middle of what was habitat). But as soon as I want to work hard to find one, kill eat, and eat every morsel- the vitriol is out of control. Excuse me if I don't get the logic.	-,,

Stop this insane practice, no more hunting! Hunting is not ecologically necessary. The U.S. Government's abuse of funds to cater to hunters harms ecosystems and abandons the public trust in the process. Many Wildlife Agencies are designed to work on behalf of Ranchers and Hunters. Predatory animals such as bears and wolves are targeted to eliminate threats to livestock and game animals. Hunting kills ecologically critical animals and does not serve to create an ecological balance; it serves to benefit hunters and ranchers.	2/23/2022 12:26 PM	Online Survey
I support the spring bear hunt. It is a good healthy source of meat and helps people learn more about these beautiful animals. I oppose Spring Bear Hunting. Many hunters supporters claim that hunters are responsible for generating the most revenue for wildlife agencies, however, today less than 5% of US citizens hunt. In comparison, the number of non-hunting outdoor enthusiasts is steadily rising. The results of a 5-year survey conducted by FWS and released in 2011 found that hunters invested 33.7 billion dollars into hunting, while wildlife watchers alone generated 54.9 billion. The decline in hunter-generated revenue led to the Pitman-Robertson Act, which ties wildlife agencies to the firearms industry. The P-R Act allows for the misappropriation of funds.	2/23/2022 12:32 PM 2/23/2022 12:33 PM	Online Survey Online Survey

Example: "Its a trophy hunt!"

Answer: "We take the meat and hide, much like deer hunting, its illegal for hunters to leave the meat, period."

Example: "You kill sows and cubs"

Answer:"Hunters focus on male mature boars and totally avoid sows with cubs"

Example: "Spring bear hunting orphans cubs!"

Answer: "This new rule makes it illegal instead of simply frowned upon, that alone should have you support it."

Example: "Its cruel and tortures them!"

Answer: "We are trained, from hunters education, how to quickly and cleanly kill an animal and practice it. It is far more quick and clean that any "natural" death they might received, say like being killed in a fight with another bear, starve to death etc".

I could go on but you get it. Just admit you dont like hunting and you have no valid argument. I can accept that.

We however, have biology, science, historical data, ethics, fair chase and a burning desire to no longer sit quiet and watch our hunting rights go away. From here on out, you will be hearing from us, in full, and loudly.

not science. It's time for us to hold the politicians accountable, and allow the scientists in our Wdfw offices to do their job. They recommended we expand this not due to the heavy predation of our prey species. Without balance, the prey species will continue to decline to near extinction. And then when they are no longer around the predators will come digging in our trash cans and other things. The unfortunate truth is without culling of bears. It's bad for them and bad for us. We can't be ok with taking their lands, but not ok with not setting them up with success. A weak hungry population could end up wiping them out too if a disease came in. Stop the emotional driven rhetoric and let's have civil discourse and talk about what's best for the wildlife long term.

Deer and elk are limited by politically allowed habitat. Bear have virtually nothing to do with it. Wether a bear kills a deer or elk is no different than a human doing it. If a bear happens to do it it is for survival, if you do it it is not. The only unnatural act here is hunting. If everyone quit hunting nature will balance itself to adapt. Sport hunters hunt for self not for some imagined thing like they are doing something for wildlife and not themselves. Sport hunting is a highly emotional thing as has been stated numerous times in the comments, so emotional in fact as to threaten and ostracize Commissioners and non hunters.	2/24/2022 12:25 AM	Online Survey

Bears possess a unique ability known as delayed implantation, which is nature's way of keeping bear populations in check. When bears have an abundant food supply, more bears will be born. When food is scarce, female bears will not reproduce every two years but instead every 3-4 years. Hunting can inadvertently increase populations by leaving the surviving bears with more food. This phenomenon is known as compensatory reproduction, which causes the surviving bears to have an increased number of young. Compensatory reproduction is a documented fact known to hunters and causes drastic population fluctuations and instability.

I am writing to voice my opinion on the 2022 Spring Bear Season. First, I should state that I am a biologist by trade and I believe that best available science and data should drive natural resource management decisions. That is NOT what we saw from the Commission during the October 21st meeting. Stephanie Simek, large carnivore biologist, presented information on the current population status, harvest history, male:female ratios and provided data on lactating females and other pertinent information. She then touched on research results from a calf elk mortality study in the Blue Mountains which shed light on the elk population decline that hunters and biologists have been observing for over a decade. Based on her professional expertise and research data she made the recommendation to the Commission to continue the Spring Bear Permit Season in similar numbers to previous years. Instead of appreciating the information presented and using it to inform their decision, several commission members contradicted Mrs. Simek, not based on data or science, but based on their feelings towards bears.

I ask that the WDFW Commission to please consider a petition to call for a revote on the 2022 Spring Bear Permit Season.

A second point that I would like to address is the travesty that is occurring on the appointments and confirmations for Commission positions. Specifically, the eastern Washington vacant seats and at-large positions should be filled immediately. The status quo creates an unbalanced Commission where half of the state is underrepresented. Please ask the Governor to fill all positions on the Commission Board to bring some credibility to the Commission and to the rule/policy making process.

If the Governor is unwilling to follow the established process for rule making and WDFW leadership; all options should be available and pursued with vigor in the State Legislature to improve the Commission function.

Sincerely,

Jarred Johnson

The attached letter explains these problems with the rule-making process and others. Laws that require public participation in decision-making were adopted because people believed substantive comments from the public might add new

I realize the spring bear hunt issue has been a bit of a thorn in the side of the Commission, and that it boiled over partly to the point of the exit of one commissioner. After reading more about the relevant commission meeting, I thought 2/24/2022 3:50 PM Paper Survey the public needed to hear that there is at least one moderating view to consider.

So, I published a slightly condensed version of the attached Op-Ed as a Letter to the Editor in the Seattle Times on December 17, 2021, and in the Spokesman-Review on December 25, 2021. I don't know if you had a chance to see it, but since I have placed my name forward to fill one of the vacant spots on the wildlife commission I thought you might like to see what I had to say ('from afar'). Unexpectedly, I received a two-thumbs-up text from Bob Everitt after he saw it in the Times -- I was very humbled as he certainly knows much more than I do about the salient issue(s) and commission interactions.

Lastly, best of luck with all the many challenges and concerns you have to deal with throughout the year; let's hope for safe journies for your staff and universal reasoned discourse for decision-makers.

Along with nearly 2000 petition signers from change.org, we request a permanent ban on spring bear hunting in Washington. Thx, Marielle Marne & Steven Moore	2/24/2022 3:53 PM	Paper Survey
Dear Commission,	2/24/2022 3:59 PM	Paper Survey
A central part of WDFW's legislative mandate is to provide sustainable recreational hunting opportunity. Spring bear special permit hunts are one of a very limited number spring hunting opportunities and there is very strong interest from hunters for the limited spring bear hunting permits. Additionally, the spring season can aid in the agency's management goals for prey species such as deer and elk since bear predation is an important factor in fawn and calf recruitment.
I strongly encourage the commission to follow the professional biologist's scientifically based recommendations and implement a spring bear season.
Thank you,
Jason Villiard
I fully support the spring bear hunt and this proposal. As a resident of the state I am thoroughly disgusted that this is even being considered again. We voted to stop the Spring hunt and we did not ever vote to allow the Spring hunt to be permanent. What about the 2019 study by the prohunting organization National Shooting Sports Foundation that found 80% of Western states residents oppose the cruel practice of Spring hunts? Are we listening to the public or only special interest groups here in our state? Hunters often have no idea if offspring are around a sow, since she forages wide for food, treeing her cubs. To say that the law will make sure that sows with offspring are not killed is ludicrous. This cruel spring killing, whose proclaimed "benefits" aren't backed by data or science, must not take place in Washington this year — or any other year.	2/24/2022 4:06 PM 2/24/2022 4:10 PM	Online Survey Online Survey

l am at a loss as to why spring bear season was canceled. We have an abundance of bears that will be coming out of hibernation hungry and irritable. Predator hunts ensure that deer and elk populations grow, which in turn means better harvest in the fall. I'm just concerned that letting the bear population get uncontrollable will be bad for conservation purposes and for the communities in bear country.

My name is Cody Hughes lifetime resident of the west side of Washington state. I am sending this email in regards to your recent decision to end the spring bear hunt in Washington state. I believe we need to look at this situation through a scientific lense and not take away the opportunity based on elected officials personal feelings towards predators in the state. I am no scientist but I do spend more time outdoors than even the longest employed REI receptionist at any location. I believe predators need to have an honest fear of humans to protect the public and over population would do the exact opposite. WDFW officer Bruce Richards use to bring his bear trap with live black bear to my elementary school in the early 2000s and preach that when predator numbers get too high, it forces these animals down to the populated towns in search of food (garbage cans). Each and every bear he brought by in the years between 1999-2002 were all problem bears eating trash and had to be relocated. This is an expensive operation relying on tax payer dollars and in my opinion letting residents keep these bear numbers in check through hunting is a cheaper alternative and the WDFW will also make money off of the special permits and hunting tags.
Thank you for your time I hope you consider my point of view when making this very important desicion.

Dear Sir or Madam: 2/24/2022 4:21 PM Paper Survey

This letter transmits my comments on your proposed rulemaking of February 1, 2022, regarding spring bear hunting. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I know you will receive a large volume of comments so I will keep my comments brief. I am a hunter and a wildlife biologist with over 30 years of experience. I do not represent my employer; these comments are strictly my own.

First let me provide some brief context for these hunts. Then, I would like to identify the portions of your proposal I support, and the portions of your proposal I would hope you modify.

The purposes of the spring bear hunt include providing recreation to hunters, reducing conflicts and damage, and controlling predation on ungulates, as well as other reasons. While providing recreation may seem trivial to some people unfamiliar with hunting's role in conservation, it is an important aspect to hunters and the funding of conservation in Washington State. Also, using hunters to keep bear numbers in check is a cost-effective alternative to either sustaining damage or using contractors under permit to WDFW to reduce bear numbers.

There are a number of things in your proposal that I support. The largest part of your proposal is to continue spring bear hunts using a permit system whereby the number of permits issued is the primary mechanism for regulating harvest. You would continue, no doubt, to utilize reporting, including the portion of permits that go unused and average days of hunting per hunter, as additional factors to consider. Data-driven decisions will continue to be important in managing the open areas and number of permits over time. I strongly support removing the year from the WAC title and using your flexibility in establishing open areas and permit numbers on an annual basis.

I also support your added inspection provisions but would add a provision to allow for taking of biological samples. The ability to take such samples should include (among other things) a tooth, other tissue, and evidence of lactation. It should be noted that information about lactation would provide an absolute worst-case estimate of sows with cubs because there are other reasons such evidence may exist on a sow, such as recent death of the cubs prior to harvest. But Do you know the answer to this question? The removal of a date from the spring bear hunting WAC is extremely important since this seems to make them a yearly hunt that no longer requires a rule-making process each year or they do not happen. This was mentioned in the petition that commissioners voted to approve in January but I don't remember that this part of that pretition being discussed during that special meeting. My question is really this:

did this new and very significant change in this new proposal for the 2022 spring bear hunts come from the petition and when voting to accept that petition, commissioners actually voted for this change too??? If so, did commissioners know this was part of the petition they were accepting? OR is this something staff thought up - along with the change about killing females and cubs???

This is such a significant change that I agree with what Thorburn has said about some other smaller changes, this kind of change should be discussed during the update of the GMP or somewhere else and not as "a rider" on the usual yearly rule-making process for spring bear hunts. This is a substantial change.

I think where this change came from could be very important to this issue in many ways - whether it came from the commission's vote to start a new rule-making process or whether this was added by WDFW staff in the Wildlife Program. Maybe this is a legal question too.

I strongly support this spring bear hunt, and the WAC revisions. Do not let animal rights extremists influence wildlife management decisions.

2/24/2022 4:25 PM Online Survey

I am writing to the commission in hopes that you will reinstate the spring Black Bear hunt that was canceled by a tie vote. I ask that the remaining commission members follow the guidance of the state funded fish and wildlife biologists 2/24/2022 4:24 PM and their expert and first hand knowledge. I also ask that the commission disregard the ill-informed and emotion based rhetoric that is being used by members of the commission and non outdoors men and women. The very basis of their argument and questioning of ethics is insulting to all hunters. And I will argue that they are not acting in good faith. If members of the commission and people in opposition of the spring bear hunt would seek to remedy concerns rather than end the hunt all together. I.e. create a penalty and or make illegal the harvest of sow with cubs, and or delay/shorten the season.

2022 4:24 PM Paper Survey

The rhetoric stating for example that bears are hungry and therefore easier to hunt is the opposite of the facts. Bears at this period are unable to eat a complete diet due to their metabolism not fully functioning. This results in the Bears being very transitory in their search for easier to digest foods such as grass, shoots and forbes. Bears are also beginning to breed at the end of the spring season. As a result of this Bears will become even more nomadic in their search for a mate. These facts and the low density of bears make them difficult to hunt, let alone find. If going into the wilderness/backcountry with only the equipment you can carry on your back then spotting, stalking and harvesting an animal isn't ethical as stated by members of the commission then EVERY type of hunting is at risk in Washington.

There are additional things for the commission to consider In regards to conservation and the spring Bear hunt. During this period of the spring hunt Bears will consume large numbers of fawns and calls. In some cases reducing fawn recruitment by 40%, having a devastating effect on ungulates. They will also strip and eat the cambium layer of trees during this period resulting in the death of many young trees that are critical for our ecosystems and local economy. And additionally male Bears will kill and often consume the cubs of a female bear to bring her back into estrus. This act further delays the growth of a healthy Bear population.

I ask that the commission look at these facts, as well as, the recommendations and the science presented by the WDFW wildlife biologist and reinstate the spring Bear hunt. I also ask that members of the commission show the same respect we hunters show to our lands and wildlife. And not insult us by questioning our ethics.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

-Nick Butcher

I have a few questions I hope you will answer about the new CR 102 for WDFW's new proposal to have spring bear hunting in 2022.

2/24/2022 4:26 PM

Paper Survey

Does the new proposal remove the need for the commission to vote on the spring bear hunts, meaning they will become regular hunts unless a major change is requested which might trigger the need to have a commission vote? If this is true, was this in the petition that the commissioner's supported in January, 2022, with the 4 to 3 vote? Removing the date is mentioned in that petition but the intent to change this from being voted on yearly to on-going without a yearly commission vote did not seem like a request in the petition. If this change did not come from the petition, was this voted on by the commission in the 4 to 3 vote in January, or was this something staff has added?

Thanks.

Muzzleloading firearms. from: https://app.leg.wa.gov/wac/default.aspx?cite=220-414-060

The requirement of Section (3) "... Modern handguns cannot be used to hunt big game or dispatch wounded big game during a big game hunting season for muzzleloading firearms." I find that being able to be legal and ethical is made very difficult by the definition and requirements:

.45 Caliber

45 grains of powder

8 inch barrel

What I want to see is the rules change:

- 1) Reduce the barrel length of 5 inches or more.
- 2) Reduce the powder charge to more than 7.5 grains or more, OR even remove this as a requirement.
- 3) Reduce the caliber to .36 caliber (equivalent to a .357 Mag).

Or

1) If the issue of power as the quesion of being ethical, then a setting of muzzel energy would be in alignment with setting a draw weight of a bow.

Why, these changes would allow a blackpowder hunter a more pistol options to support the ethical hunting with blackpowder rifle, giving them a tool to dispatch wounded animals and stay legal.

It would also align more with what is allow as a "modern" pistol and still keep the respectful aspects of blackpowder hunting.

RE: Comments on Proposed Changes to Spring Bear Hunting Rules

These comments are submitted on behalf of the Northwest Animal Rights Network ("NARN") related to the Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission's ("Commission"), of the Washington State Department of Fish and Wildlife ("Department"), proposed changes to the spring bear hunting rules (CR-102 filed as WAC 220-415-080 currently titled "2021 Spring Black Bear Special Permits").

NARN is a non-profit organization based in Washington State with over 5,000 members and supporters. NARN's staff and members care deeply about black bears in Washington and are very concerned about their safety and preservation. Although some of the proposed rule changes may appear to be somewhat insignificant – proposing to remove the year from the title, minor modifications to harvest and inspection procedures and adding a stipulation and adjusting the number of permits - it is still vital to consider the use of best available science in making wildlife management decisions, particularly with regard to the proposed stipulation that would prohibit harvest of female black bears.

This rulemaking provides the Department the opportunity to more fully consider the management considerations and science behind the spring bear hunt generally and how the science aligns with the Department's mandate to preserve, Loppose spring bear hunting. Thank you.

I strongly support this spring bear hunt, which qualified WDFW staff have determined is sustainable. I further contend that it is incumbent on the Fish and Wildlife Commission (who by statute are required to maximize hunting opportunities when compatible with healthy wildlife populations) to approve this hunt.

I support the spring bear hunt

Biologists agree, bear hunting is beneficial. Fully support this rule.

I support spring bear hunting. Humans are a natural predator on the landscape keep the natural balance in place. Humans are the only predators that are selective and work within sustainable limits. Hunting also provides the majority of funding for all species in the environment.

Director Susewind.

My name is Lisa Noonan and I am submitting comments related to the Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission's proposed changes to the spring bear hunting rules (CR-102 filed as WAC 220-415-080 currently titled "2021 Spring Black Bear Special Permits").

I care deeply about black bears in Washington and wish to ensure their safety and preservation.

I am appalled that WDFW insists these hunts must continue because a small group of trophy hunters enjoy this "recreational opportunity" for bear killing. It is time to stop this ecocide, revise regulations and base black bear management on modern science, not vengeance.

This rulemaking provides WDFW the opportunity to more fully review the management considerations and science behind the spring bear hunt and how they might align with the WDFW's mandate to preserve, protect, and perpetuate the fish and wildlife of the state.

Please consider the following points:

- The tied voting at the W DFW. Wildlife Commission meeting on 11/19/2021 regarding spring bear hunts for 2022 indicates that members of the Commission prioritize the public's humane values and demonstrates its commitment to managing Washington's wildlife with the best available science.
- Commissioner Baker said that suspending the hunt would allow biologists more time to study how the hunts affect Washington's black bear population, clearly affirming the need for better scientific evidence on bear populations.
- Commissioner Smith said that "we don't know exactly what our bear population is because the model, by our own admission, is not that reliable and we've doubled the harvest limit."
- Ohly 15% of people in Western states favor spring bear hunting, while a majority 64% disapprove, and 47% strongly disapprove.
- The hunts threaten bears when they are at their most vulnerable state. The stress of the hunt can cause additional mortalities other than death by hunters.
- The latest science by WDFW biologists shows that bear densities and mortality rates vary widely across the state and that bear populations may be up to 50% lower than previously thought in many areas.
- WDFW claims spring bear hunts are needed to address "management needs," such as reducing tree damage and human-bear conflicts, but when challenged, has been unable to provide data to back up these assertions. Instead, the Department has conceded that the spring hunt is really for recreation.

As you can see from the above facts, Washington State does not have adequate scientific evidence to back up any so-called need for spring bear hunts, and spring bear hunts may even adversely harm our bear populations. A majority of

RE: 2022 Spring Bear Hunt

RE: 2022 Spring Bear Hunt

Dear Director Susewind:

My name is Alison Anderson and I am submitting comments related to the Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission's proposed changes to the spring bear hunting rules (CR-102 filed as WAC 220-415-080 currently titled "2021 Spring Black Bear Special Permits").

I have a background in environmental planning and have spent 20 plus years working to protect wildlife and its habitat. Ecological balance is of utmost importance to me. I work from a perspective of sound science.

This rulemaking provides WDFW the opportunity to more fully review the management considerations and science behind the spring bear hunt and how they might align with the WDFW's mandate to preserve, protect, and perpetuate the fish and wildlife of the state.

Please consider the following points:

The tied voting at the WDFW Wildlife Commission meeting on 11/19/2021 regarding spring bear hunts for 2022 indicates that members of the Commission prioritize the public's humane values and demonstrates its commitment to managing Washington's wildlife with the best available science.

Commissioner Baker said that suspending the hunt would allow biologists more time to study how the hunts affect Washington's black bear population, clearly affirming the need for better scientific evidence on bear populations.

Commissioner Smith said that "we don't know exactly what our bear population is because the model, by our own admission, is not that reliable...and we've doubled the harvest limit."

Only 15% of people in Western states favor spring bear hunting, while a majority 64% disapprove, and 47% strongly disapprove.

The hunts threaten bears when they are at their most vulnerable state. The stress of the hunt can cause additional mortalities other than death by hunters.

The latest science by WDFW biologists shows that bear densities and mortality rates vary widely across the state and that bear populations may be up to 50% lower than previously thought in many areas.

WDFW claims spring bear hunts are needed to address "management needs," such as reducing tree damage and human-bear conflicts, but when challenged, has been unable to provide data to back up these assertions. Instead, the Department has conceded that the spring hunt is really for recreation.

As you can see from the above facts, Washington State does not have adequate scientific evidence to back up any so-called need for spring bear hunts, and spring bear hunts may even adversely harm our bear populations. A majority of Washington State citizens DO NOT support spring bear hunting. I ask that you not allow bear hunts to move forward this spring.

I ask you to use the best available science in your wildlife management work and put this above special interests.

Shooting mother bears with cubs is no more an issue in springtime than it is any other time of the year. Cubs stay with the mother bear for two years. Hunters are asked not to shoot a sow with cubs (regardless of time of year). Every	2/25/2022 4:02 PM	Online Survey

Removing a predator hunt during a time when many parts of the state are dealing with bear overpopulation is not sound wildlife management.

As someone whose diet largely consists of bear, I can tell you from first hand experience that the WA bear population is thriving, healthy and growing. I have seen more bears in 2021 than I have in the last 3 years beforehand, and like any other predatory animal the numbers need to be managed. Bear harvest rates are consistently growing, but not enough to keep up with the increase in bear population. Not only should spring bear be available for management purposes, but also recreationally available as an OTC (over the counter) tag. Between the recent outbreak of Blue Toungue and EHD in eastern WA, and the ever growing cases of CWD spreading closer to the WA/ID border, bear management is more important than ever if above all else, to help with the birth and survival rate of deer fawns in the spring - which are bears' main source of protein once they are out of their dens. Both Idaho and Montana have OTC Spring Bear tags and their populations are not only considerably healthy, but ever growing. Washington - has two OTC bear tags available every year except Idaho allows for OTC Spring Bear opportunities. At the very least, Washington should reinstate the special draw tags for Spring Bear. Washington's bear population is certainly sustainable enough to follow suit without consequence. Allowing hunting for animals just coming out of their den is disgusting and disturbing. Please stop this cruel practice! Spring bear hunting is a great way to manage the black bear population and decrease the mortality rate for deer fawns, elk and moose calves. I support a spring bear season as does the science provided by the WDFW biologists Science and data show that the pros outweigh the cons when it comes to having a spring bear season.	2/26/2022 10:59 AM 2/26/2022 11:01 AM 2/26/2022 11:06 AM 2/26/2022 11:07 AM 2/26/2022 11:07 AM	Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey

As someone whose diet largely consists of bear, I can tell you from first hand experience that the WA bear population is thriving, healthy and growing. I have seen more bears in 2021 than I have in the last 3 years beforehand, and like any other predatory animal the numbers need to be managed. Bear harvest rates are consistently growing, but not enough to keep up with the increase in bear population. Not only should spring bear be available for management purposes, but also recreationally available as an OTC (over the counter) tag. Between the recent outbreak of Blue Toungue and EHD in eastern WA, and the ever growing cases of CWD spreading closer to the WA/ID border, bear management is more important than ever if above all else, to help with the birth and survival rate of deer fawns in the spring - which are bears' main source of protein once they are out of their dens. Both Idaho and Montana have OTC Spring Bear tags and their populations are not only considerably healthy, but ever growing. Washington-like Idaho - has two OTC bear tags available every year except Idaho allows for OTC Spring Bear opportunities. This is not humane. Bears aren't doing anything but going around eating and taking care of their cubs. Killing for fun or sport is wrong. It's not good for the bears or humans. You're encouraging lower brain thinking. It affects society as a whole when people become disconnected from the heart and lose respect for life. It's not right. It's not even about science. It's about level of consciousness and developing respect for life. Would you want people to get licenses to come hunt your family? Of course not. Then why are you doing that to bears? They have just as strong family connections and love for life. These are God's creatures. Stop killing for fun. You're doing harm to your own heart and soul. God bless.	2/26/2022 12:19 PM	Online Survey
To say this hunt is cruel and irrational is absurd. What is cruel and irrational is letting the unchecked predator decimate our already struggling ungulate populations. To say they are part of a natural and balanced ecosystem is laughable and shows a lack of time in the woods. I seen more predators last year then deer in what seems like half as many days. This hunt is for the sake of balancing populations and is an important conservation tool. Please listen to the professionals, and keep emotions out of consideration. Spring bear hunting is not allowed in 42 of the United States because it's barbaric. The animals are at their weakest, so it's not really a fair fight to ambush them as they are awaking from hibernation and leaving their dens. especially in the chelan county and blue mountains. I go shed hunting every year in both those areas and have been involved with many spring bear hunts over the years. Last year, I went on a spring bear hunt with a friend who was drawn. In the 5 days we were hunting, we saw 39 bears and 17 cubs. We were covering miles a day and glassing way more, but that is the most bears I have ever seen in the blue mountains.
Now lets look at the number of elk and deer that I saw over that same period. We saw less than 10 deer and maybe 15 elk. What that tells me is that an area that used to be loaded with deer and elk is no longer the case and yet the bears are more prevalent.
In the chelan county area, which I have owned a recreationla piece of property and my parents live, I took my children into an area north of Lake Wenatchee and we saw 23 bears on a September weekend. My son harvested his 3rd bear since he started hunting 3 years ago. We did not see more than 5 deer that same weekend.
Please allow us to continue the spring bear hunt andalso open up more areas. The deer and elk populations are on the decrease and it has to due with the high bear population. Bears eat deer and elk and their calves on a regular basis and if we don't allow spring bear hunting, which is when they are most active, the bear population will continue to increase and our deer and elk will continue to decrease.

Bear hunting is an essential part of conservation during the spring and fall. The spring season offers a critical time to hunt bears while they are out hunting for fawns, calves and cubs. Mature male bears are one of the major causes of infanticide for cub of the year mortality. This hunt is supported by data and science from every biological study conducted in Washington. To deny this is strictly an emotional decision which has no place in the North American or Washington wildlife management model. Thank you to those of you who stand with facts and logic. The science says that spring bear hunting is not essential to deer and elk management and is not even a measurable factor. Science shows that deer and elk are directly and measurably limited by political decisions as to where they are	2/28/2022 10:55 PM 2/28/2022 11:48 PM	Online Survey Online Survey allowed to exist. Herd size on these political allotments is limited to the quality of that habitat which of course changes for many reasons, weather patterns, wildfire, land abuse by human activity, disease, pests, overgrazing, logging, monoculture foresty and political will to name the most important.	2/20/2022 11.40 FIVI	Offinite Survey
I am 100% against hunting bears in the spring. No reputable studies offer any support for this. I oppose the spring bear hunt. One reason is openly clear, to put in stipulations against killing mother bears and young bears shows this to be a problem in most hunts. Even with regulations it happens on hunts. Secondly, bear control can be successful without hunts, which is inhumane.		Online Survey Online Survey

I support the spring bear hunt. I work on wildlife issues and the logic that allowing bears to overpopulate and coexist with other animals is flawed. They don't coexist as they can be territorial and are predators. This is because bears are Omnivores which means they eat plants and meat. So any chance they get at an easy meal such as a fawn or calf elk they will take. Thus greatly reducing the numbers of other animals. The bear cubs will do the same thing once they are old/strong enough. Please continue the spring bear hunt and proposed regulations in keeping with actual science and healthy populations of all animals in our great Pacific Northwest so we can enjoy all of the creatures we are blessed with.	3/2/2022 11:47 AM	Online Survey
Fully support the spring bear hunt. The comments that they are lethargic and weak is wrong. Bears come out of hibernation mid March. Regular season opener is in mid April. With the being said 98% of the spring bear tags are on the east side, you cannot even get to where the bears are until early to mid May at best. The bears have been out for almost 2 months. What's barbaric are the cubs that are eaten by boars that we target or watching an elk or deer fawn being ripped to shreds. All wildlife management is based on science and not emotional opinions. It has been successful for 100 years.	3/2/2022 12:13 PM	Online Survey spring bear hunt! I am resistant to the Bear Hunting practice. Hunting kills ecologically critical animals and does not serve to create an ecological balance; it serves to benefit hunters and ranchers. No science has shown that hunting favors conservation,	3/3/2022 6:28 AM	Online Survey

this is a myth created on biased information. I am biologist practicing in countries where hunting is banned, and these countries wildlife thrive without human intervention. STOP THIS ATROCITY and ECOLOGICAL CATACLYSM		•
Stop demonized wildlife. Bears need to survive under the hazardous conditions humans have created for them: clime crisis, wildfire, habitat destruction. Hunters do not have any idea how complex bears are. I have been exploring wildlife for the last few years, and these animals are amazing to me. 100% support spring bear hunting. The bears in Washington are absolutely thriving in spite of hunting for over 35 years of being in the woods for 180 days a year I have seen first hand the population boom in bears but have seen the steady decline of deer and elk. Not all by bears but a combination of many factors, cougars, habitat loss due to lack of proper forest management and an ever increasing bear population. Hunters have far and above a better and more complex understanding of Wildlife then those who walk on a trail and view wildlife from a distance. Management of wildlife based on science and state biologists not emotional opinions.	3/3/2022 6:54 AM	Online Survey

Hunting and the regulated consumptive use of wildlife is conservation. Since 1987 4 multibillion corporations have attempted to install a dangerous mine at the headwaters of Brisol Bay, America's largest Salmon Fishery. Imagine for a	3/3/2022 7:01 AM	Online Survey second that the salmon where "protected" from commercial and recreational fishing, do you think for a second that the mine would not have gone into place? It is because those animals have value that they remain, it is because they have value that hunters and fisherman have been able to protect that resource for almost as long as I have been alive. This value is the purpose of WDFW's mission to provide sustainable recreational (and commercial) hunting less than the occurrences in areas with healthy populations. Allowing spring hunting is terribly short sighted and cruel, which is why most states do not allow it. Most hunters cannot tell sow bears from male bears, so there will be mistake after mistake, taking out the sows and committing their cubs to starvation. "A central part of WDFW's legislative mandate is to provide sustainable recreational hunting opportunity." Allowing a spring hunt will condemn hundreds of cubs to death, causing an unnatural drop in population that could in no way be considered wise or "sustainable". Also, I do not feel this is a proper way to collect public concerns on this. I saw no public announcement about the comment period. Furthermore, I feel this way of commenting is producing a flooding of comments with suspiciously very similar wording, often coming in in clusters. Please take your decision seriously and get honest feedback from a broad population of people in Washington. This anonymous commenting brings the worst out of people and the failures of social media into public policy decision making. I totally oppose the Spring Hunting of Black Bears. The greatest predator and threat to other species and humans are humans themselves. There is no greater evidence of this than current events. 3/4/2022 1:22 AM Online Survey Totally against this insane practice, please band bear hunting this season and the upcoming ones. I come from a country that protects its wildlife; we don't get into the dilemma of harvesting or managing bear population, because we 3/4/2022 2:16 AM Online Survey know that animals possess more value alive than on the plate of misinformed and biased hunters. Several independent studies have shown than hunting bears causes indirect damage to the ecosystem and another species such as bald eagles who land near by to feed on the salmon leftovers. Bears help in seed dispersion; black bears, in particular, eat a lot of fruit and vegetation so they are amongst the main seed dispersion agents. Also, another species dragging salmon carcasses through the forest, they help to enrich the soil. This is good for trees and other forest cover vegetation. Additionally, they deposit scat on the forest floors. Animal waste deposits are great for enriching the soil. They act as a natural growth booster. It is very shame from country than weight more individual and ferocious minority interest than the welfare of the entire ecosystem and the nation. Fully support the spring bear hunt. As a managed species there is no detriment to the species or the environment. 3/4/2022 6:18 AM Online Survey Emotional reasoning has no part in wildlife management This proposal is quite strict and should be considered carefully by both hunters and those against hunting. It's counter intuitive to allow hunting in bear sanctuaries that were established to protect bears and their critical habitat.

wildlife "management" better known as unjust slaughter. Why are some humans not happy unless they are causing suffering and death?

Furthermore, allowing dogs to enter these sanctuaries will displace wildlife, including bears pushing them out of the sanctuaries and into residential areas creating more alleged conflicts.

This proposal does not address the underlying cause, which is human behaviour. The basis of this proposal is to address bear-human conflicts, and it is important to note that hunting does not reduce bear-human conflicts. Deforestation is responsible for the loss of critical bear habitat. Land development and bear attractants such as unsecured trash are most likely the cause of increased bear-human conflicts, not overpopulation.

Research shows that eliminating bear attractants and securing trash in bear-proof trash cans can reduce or eliminate bear conflicts by over 90%.

Hunting does not reduce bear-human encounters or conflicts.

Black bears are predominantly vegetarian (90%), with only 5% of their diet consisting of meat.

STOP THE BEAR HUNTING!!

I strongly oppose the Spring Bear Hunt.

Unprovoked bear attacks are rare. According to bear expert Lynn Rogers, Ph.D. of the North American Bear Center says you are 45 times more likely to be killed by a dog, 120 times more likely to be killed by bees, and 60,000 times more likely to be murdered by another human being, than to be killed by a black bear.

Bears regulate their own populations through a biological process known as delayed implantation. Delayed implantation allows bears to control their populations. When food is abundant, more bears will be born. When there is a lack of abundant food sources, female bears will not reproduce every two years, but alternatively, every three to four years.

So I am asking that you do not let this bear hunt go ahead. Trophy hunters have no interest in what is good for the environment and biodiversity and looking after out fragile planet.

We must learn to share our planet with all the animals that we live with. They have a right to love here too and it's the human race that is at fault for conflicts with animals as we take over their land. That is why they and their environment must be protected.

I totally oppose the spring bear hunt. It is cruel beyond measure and a hunt "cull" for purposes of population management is simply not necessary. It is just giving trophy hunters and excuse to take trophy. This hunt should be ban completely, not given permanent status by virtue of these changes. I am aghast reading the comments below. What does it say about us that our only solution to something is killing? Have we forgotten that bears have every right to live on the land just as we do? Remember, they were here first and we encroached on their territory, they did not encroach on ours. I don't think we would take to kindly to it if someone were to come into our homes and start shooting the men, to leave widows and orphans behind. Families of bears want what all families want: to raise their young and live in peace. As we move further and further into their territory, let's work together to find humane solutions to any conflicts this creates.	3/4/2022 9:31 AM	Online Survey
I encourage you please to reach out to wildlife organizations who may be able to help relocate bears or set up humane deterrents, if that is what is needed. As a WA state resident I oppose spring bear hunting at the most vulnerable time for Sows & their cubs. They leave hibernation with the males often times not emerging for a week or two which leaves the cubs severely vulnerable as mama bear cannot forage to feed & protect cubs at same time! All reports prove that whenever killing measures/hunts such as this have NO effect on human vs bear interactions or nuisances or population control. Surely there are many other non lethal ways such as relocation to tackle these issues. Also I think consulting with our indigenous / Native American citizens would be of superb value & wealth of knowledge before trying to interrupt or play with Mother Nature & start killing. Trophy/sport/thrill killing is disgusting & needs to stop feeding egos & greedy environmentally unconscious people. Our wildlife should not be exploited & nothing should ever be killed for sport of money! It also should be noted that a female council member helped organize, plan & direct the safari club (which is wealthy trophy hunters) the fake petition they're talking about. Seems like there's a conflict of interest here that should be looked into! As a WA state resident this screams corruption & I demand accountability & resolution. It's worth noting to folks that oppose this hunt forward your comments to Gov Inslee as well. An investigation needs to be conducted into this council member as she's in conflict. NO BEAR HUNT like you voted on Nov 2021. It should stand!	3/4/2022 9:35 AM	Online Survey
I would also point out that a commissioner used to be the head of an animal rights group that opposes hunting yet receives money from WDFW. Having a public office give money to an organization that is run by them is a real conflict of interest. Petition Spring Black Bear CR-102
I'm not particularly opposed to hunting. Where I live it's absolutely necessary to control the huge deer population. However, I do oppose spring hunting of bears. The spring hunts are particularly because hunters are allowed to kill mother cubs and cubs, beginning in the spring when they are most vulnerable as they leave their dens after winter hibernation. If a mother is killed but the cubs live, the cubs' survival is doubtful without their mother. The bears are hungry after hibernation and out searching for sprouting vegetation. This makes it easier for hunters to spot them by targeting areas with much food supply. Other species are affected as well, since bears play a vital role in seed dispersal, spreading more seeds than even birds. This dispersal is a significant factor in forest ecology. If bear numbers decline, so will plant species in their ecosystems.
Those who love forests have many varied interests. We all must share in our use of the forest and do our part to protect it and use it in a sustainable manner. Allowing spring bear hunts is the opposite of that! Public opinion of hunting is on the decline. To preserve their sport, hunters should be in agreement with banning the spring bear hunts.

Spring bear hunts inevitably orphan bear cubs and leave them to die. The hunts occur when the sows are still nursing cubs. State wildlife officials and other experts agree there is no way to prevent cubs from being orphaned during spring	., .	, bear hunting. Hunters are unable to distinguish between female and male bears, and nursing mothers will often stow their cubs in a safe place out of sight when they forage during the spring, ln spring, black bears are at their most vulnerable state, weak from hunger and sluggish from hibernation. Food is scarce, requiring bears to forage in clearings with no cover.
WDFW singles bears out for spring hunting. Because of the stress that spring hunting puts on all wildlife populations as they recover from winter and rear their young, Washington does not allow spring hunting of any other species except turkey.
The wildlife Society of America (2019) determined that "Disparities between expected and empirically derived bear density illustrate the need for more rigorous monitoring to understand processes that affect population numbers throughout the jurisdiction and suggest that management plans may need to be reevaluated to determine if current harvest strategies are achieving population objectives."

According to this rul shooting a lactating sow or a cub under a year old would be illegal. All bears would be checked by a biologist after harvest as has been the rule for a few years now. Feel free to look at past harvest numbers on WDFW website. Our population is beyond stable and sustainable and can %100 support a spring bear hunt as has been proven for the last 20+ years. The biologists agree that the only reason to stop a spring bear hunt is emotional and social not scientific. Feel free to watch the commission meeting where this was asked directly of the head of the carnivore division at wdfw by a commissioner who has a conflict of interest in stopping hunting. The state mandates that opportunity be provided unless the populations are crashing and unsustainable. This is clearly not the case for bears. concerns and results in the take of vulnerable bears, including lactating mothers. Enacting a permanent spring bear hunt will keep rule makers from responding to science on this issue — for instance, the 2019 mandate that pelt data be collected was to give the Fish and Wildlife Department better information to manage the spring bear hunt. But last year, the department canceled the inspections because of the pandemic, making the 2021 season the first time hunters have reported that information to the department. By amending the rule to make the spring bear hunt a permanent facet of the hunting season the Commission would be foregoing the opportunity to respond to this preliminary data, and	1 will make it more difficult for the Commission to respond to science in the future. WDFW should collect data for several years before making this hunt permanent. It is unlawful to harvest/take a female black bear accompanied by one or more offspring or harvest/take offspring, yet this rule will effectively permit this very action and the department does not currently have enough data to determine that such effects won't be harmful. Therefore, I oppose the proposed rule amendment to WAC 220-415-080.	!

Additionally, anyone who feels urge to kill, and finds satisfaction in taking lives, has to be assessed by a psychiatrist, and most likely would need a professional help not a rifle. We must permit the spring bear hunt in order to maintain healthy populations for all animals. I support the proposals for spring bear hunting. A lot of the hunters say they hunt bear because they want the meat. Bears emerge skinny from winter hibernation and take a while to build up their body mass. In the fall they are plump and full of fat. Why would you want to hunt skinny animals for meat? Answer, you just like to kill things. So many calls for science, science, science, if science is so great why are wildlife numbers sinking sinking around the world. If people are so concerned about low deer and elk numbers, how about reducing the deer and elk hunting quotas for some years. I spend a lot of time in the woods and wilds in eastern Washington for the past 52 years and see fewer bears in recent years then I used to. I hear quotes in these comments that hunters hardly ever kill sows with cubs and not many bears are taken every year. You can bet there are a lot of bear kills every years that are not reported. And here we go with the antis supporting murder of humans. Thats the side anti bear huntiers are on. The side of murderers. Fully support spring bear hunting. Never support a brutal practice where always loose the bears. Hunting is no the solution for conservation, and it is not supported by objective science. In this discussion it is not considering the indirect effect of hunting bears: alteration of the offspring and female behavior; changed in social bears structure which induced selected infanticide; decreased of offspring survival; imbalance in the ecosystems; toxic effects of the ammunition in the environment affecting other pivotal animal such as bald eagles. With all respect to the biologist from WFWD, but I invite you to see how other countries manage animals populations without hunting and it deleterious effect in the ecosystems. It is time to change mentality of destroying every life merely go human commodity, and progress toward a practice more environment sustainable where everyone, including the bears, win.	3/5/2022 12:16 AM	Online Survey Online Survey
As a researcher with ample knowledge in environmental science who has lived in many countries and now living in WA, I oppose Bear Hunting activities. Also, I applaud the commissioners who decided to stop the bear hunting season. They have a better global view and understanding of managing the animal population around the world. From my knowledge, one of the commissioners has lived in Costa Rica, an exemplary country that has strong laws that protect wildlife and the environment. Costa Rica banned hunting in 2012 and is now one of the most biodiverse and eco touristic countries worldwide. Hoping soon, the USA will implement some of the Costa Rica environmental policies. The fact people think that bear cannot defend themselves or are "lethargic" in mid spring, weeks after leaving their den proves the absolute disconnection to nature, bear behavior and overall ignorance of the subject. Any hunter can tell you this is not true. Dont believe me? Watch the spring bear hunt on Netflix on the show MeatEater in Montana involving Clay Newcomb and Steve Rinella. Spring bear hunts in Washington are exceptionally cruel since trophy hunters can kill mother bears and cubs, and the season starts as mother bears and cubs are most vulnerable emerging from their dens following hibernation. If trophy hunters kill a mother bear and spare her cubs, they will likely die without their mother present. During springtime, bears search for early spring vegetation, making them easy targets for bear trophy hunters who scout out locations abundant in natural food sources and wait for the hungry bears to arrive. As an umbrella species, bears play a significant role in our forest ecosystems. Many other species rely on their existence. Bears are also responsible for a vital amount of seed dispersal, dispersing more seeds than birds. When bear populations decline, so do the number of plant species found in their ecosystems. For all of the reasons listed above, we, the undersigned, urge the Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission to proceed with a permanent ban on spring bear hunting in their state. https://chng.it/Y47mkPpRHd A Majority of Hunters have respect for all animals and spend a lot of time in the field. We know that bear and cougar populations have skyrocketed in the last 7 years. Some areas are almost devoid of ungulates. The recent vote to cancel the spring bear hunt in WA state was not a science based decision. The evidence produced by science supports a spring bear hunt in WA state. The bear population studies, historical harvest reports of WA and	3/6/2022 10:15 AM	Online Survey

Science is not just wildlife science biased towards the hunting to make money agency that pays for it. Political science, social science, and other sciences must be considered to make fully comprehensive and ecologically sound decisions.	3/6/2022 10:55 AM	Online Survey
Right. Instead of using biology to manage wildlife populations we should use emotions and social sciences. Of course you need money to provide habitat and Pat for the sciences to make sure that the species are doing well and to provide	3/6/2022 11:13 AM	Online Survey adequate management tools. But let's take away all those tools and live in virtual reality so that the animals can thrive lol. fully support hunting and spring bear hunting as a sustainable public resource. The law mandates providing

These anti hunting groups think bears in the wild are exactly like the Berenstein bear kids books. They live in a sad virtual world were they don't want to participate in the natural world that surrounds them. They think nature is cute and	3/6/2022 11:25 AM	Online Survey cuddly and that buying food and meat from the grocery store is all you should be doing. This way they don't have to see or participate in how they get their food. It comes neatly packaged just like the rest of their lives. Some of would rather, participate and be a part of the natural world that is both beautiful and cruel. We harvest wild plants and animals to feed our families instead of participating in destructive farming and meat factories. Let these antis finally get a chance to go outside and hug a nice cuddly bear. Or better yet watch as an adult male bear kills Cubs or a fawn. They live in a fantasy world where somehow their actions and choice of living doesn't affect the natural world around them.
They can put kin their virtual reality goggles while I take my fam outside and enjoy the public resources that are sustainable and available.

Stop this barbaric unnecessary murder of innocent bears.	3/6/2022 12:43 PM	Online Survey
There are not enough Bears in the world and too many humans. We need Bears for diversity of species on the planet. Additionally, it is cruel to slaughter magnificent Bears for the 'fun' of it - that is the real reason why the bear	3/6/2022 12:43 PM	Online Survey slaughterers kill them, not for any other supposed excuse they come up with. We need bears. They are innocent. Our descendants will despise us for not banning bear killing, thus leaving a legacy of depleted wildlife. The planet is not just for us but also for future generations. There is nothing civilised in hunting animals for fun or sport	3/6/2022 12:43 PM	Online Survey

l oppose all trophy and near hunting by humans whether for wolves, bears, or exotic animals like lions, giraffes, leopards, antielope or gazelles. It is animal cruelty and completely unethical and completely unacceptable. If we are to affirm		Online Survey our own humanity we have to do so by humanely treating others of all species. There is no fair chase and hunting it is not a sport it is not fun. There's no fair chase in hunting because the humans will always be at an evolutionarily		• disadvantage and have weapons and intelligence their animal victims will never have they don't stand a chance against human intelligence and human weapons. In Alaska it is legal to shoot bears with their cubs in their dens and wolves with their pups in their dens. Wolves can be shot at night from vehicles now and from helicopters and now people can use snares and medal leg traps. As a result wolves have chewed off their tails and their paws trying to escape as well as broken their teeth trying to get themselves free. Hunting is murder. If Genesis 1:26 was written with the knowledge of post 1970s (the 70s was the start of the environmental awareness movement) the word rule or dominion would be replaced with caretaker or steward which is what our relationship with nature and Earth was intended to be. But since the verse says humans rule (for the Bible was written by humans who have their own false ideas and ideas of the time it was written) over animals, this has lead to mass extinctions, exploitation of resources, neglect, abuse, and trafficking of animals and humans as well as animals being killed, injured or permanetly disabled because people try to force their will on animals because they think it is their birthright to rule over them. God created the Earth for us to live on and the plants and animals for us to enjoy, and the plants to heal us. He does not nor has he ever intended the overconsumption of resources of land, water, and food out of human ignorance, greed, and gluttony. He has always wanted us to be responsible and tread lightly on the Earth in our consumption of resources and humane in all aspects of animal treatment non just for our pets but for wild animals and ones raised for meat and dairy and the fish. As a result of us humans using misusing our God given free will by not doing those things, the rivers, lakes, seas, and oceans have been overfished. Too many trees have been cut down. Treating someone in humanity doesn't take away their humanity it takes away yours. The Bible is both a book of timeless advice such as loving your neighbor as yourself, doing justice, caring for the least of these, and a righteous person is one who cares for their animal and a book of advice reflecting the propaganda and societal attitudes and practices of the time (allowing slavery and the oppression of women and being anti LGBTQAI+.

I strongly SUPPORT re-opening the spring black bear hunt. There is literally ZERO reason to cancel this season. As the WDFW has stated, we have a robust population of black bears. it is the duty of the commission to offer the most amount of hunting opportunities while protecting the resource. Wildlife is not to be managed by the whims of anti-hunters and politics.	t 3/6/2022 3:23 PM	Online Survey
As a native and current Washingtonian who understands the importance of preserving our native species and ecosystems, I strongly oppose the spring bear hunt. In addition to striking at the members of the species who are carrying it forward, females and cubs, it is a cruel, cowardly, and unsportsmanlike practice that puts the mark of shame on our state as backward and having surrendered to bullies.	3/6/2022 3:27 PM	Online Survey
The spring bear hunt is an abomination and must be cancelled with permanent effect, no matter how much pushback and anger it might generate from radical hunting groups	3/6/2022 3:27 PM	Online Survey

I strongly OPPOSE re-opening the spring black bear hunt! It is the duty of the Wildlife Commission to protect these animals and not allow a spring hunt.	3/6/2022 3:30 PM	Online Survey
The Spring Bear Hunt is murder! Pure and Simple! Those who support the hunt aren't doing it for moral reasons or to protect people from bear attacks as people mostly don't get attacked by bears, when they do there is always a specific reason why the bears attack-reasons that have been addressed in the past and can be addressed moving forward. Those who want the bear hunt support it because they want to hunt, they take pleasure in the act of animal killing	3/6/2022 3:35 PM	Online Survey
I strongly oppose the spring bear hunt. I believe ecosystems and the flora and fauna within those ecosystems should be protected. Trophy hunting is an archaic sport and has no place in the 21st century.	3/6/2022 3:35 PM	Online Survey
I strongly support the re-opening of the spring black bear hunt. The WDFW Commission's stated purpose is to maximize hunting and fishing opportunities. WDFW's own science supports reopening the season.	3/6/2022 3:37 PM	Online Survey

"Harvest"!!! Bears aren't grain, this is not a "harvest"!!! t's the slaughter of wild animals for human, mostly male, gratification!! Don't try and desensitise the killing of wild animals for personal gratification by calling it something innocuou like "harvesting"!! Call it what it is, a pointless cruel bloody unnecessary pastime for bored men with a short circuit in their Neolithic brains. The argument that animals need to be controlled for their own welfare is weak and that being the case should apply much more to those that think they have a right to kill wantonly any animal they choose! Hunting to survive is acceptable, hunting for the pleasure of killing is abhorrent and shows how little some humans have evolved!! Shame on any state that fails to protects its vanishing wildlife at all costs just to please a group of deranged psychopaths!		Online Survey

It is also obvious that this will be the first of many closures to Washington hunters. For those of you who are non hunters and have never stepped off a groomed trail in the cascades the bear population since the closure of hound hunting has absolutely exploded and evidence of that can be found by the huge number of bear/ human encounters. 20 years ago you would never see multiple bears in the same square mile and now it is common place.

You non hunters thinks bear just eat berries? Quit watching cartoons. Bears decimate elk calf and deer fawn populations when not managed properly, ask anyone who actually will tell you the truth that is why they are call omnivores.

Oh and by the way game commissioners stop relying on computer generate algorithms to GUESS at animal populations

I strongly oppose the Spring Bear Hunt. It's Evil & Wicked. "Sustainable" perhaps, but questionably sound management policy from a biodiversity standpoint (large predators are important to healthy ecosystems). Also, changing this from a year-to-year to effectively a permanent policy will likely diminish (if not eliminate) the level of review the policy receives henceforth, and make it harder to enact changes if the level should prove unsustainable. At the very least, the "unless" language needs to be clearly spelled out—But since this might change over over time, keeping this a policy subject to annual review would seem the wisest approach. For these reasons I oppose this change.	3/6/2022 3:58 PM	Online Survey

Los of Iliarity in these antis comments Fully support spring bear hunting I adamantly support the spring bear hunt. The deer and elk do as well. We must protected them from the viscous predators. NO MORE Spring Bear Hunts FOREVER!!! I support the spring bear seans It's nice to be able to kill one in the spring and one in the fall so I have more time to process them Than if I have to kill them both in the fall. Also saves more fawns if I can kill one of my two bears in the spring More spring bear at part a fawnthat might be horrific. Killing a mature boar with one shot is simply humane and quick. There is absolutely zero kindness left. They were here first and so were the. White man stole their land, displaced them, murdered them and now they continue to hunt any animal left. I feel so sad. We just spent months trying to restore wolf protections. Now this !!! I vehemently, vehemently OPPOSE THE SPRING BEAR HUNT! OPPOSE the bear hunt! I support the spring bear season and the proposed rules. Regulated, licensed hunting has literally never had a negative impact on any long-term wildlife populations. To assume otherwise is fantasy. This season is fully su considering the robust population of black bear in our state. Fight habitat loss! Extremely oppose the bear hunt. It is inhumane and utterly vile. Those that prey upon innocent creatures are truly sick. It is human overpopulation that causes limited natural space for bears to be free as they should be. Hunting bears in THEIR OWN SANCTUARY should be FORBIDDEN and SEVERELY PUNISHED.	3/6/2022 5:42 PM Onlir s god given right to 3/6/2022 5:44 PM Onlir hunter with his American Indian. 3/6/2022 5:45 PM Onlir 3/6/2022 5:46 PM Onlir stainable 3/6/2022 5:47 PM Onlir 3/6/2022 5:47 PM Onlir 3/6/2022 5:48 PM Onlir 3/6	ne Survey ne Survey ne Survey ne Survey ne Survey ne Survey

We too pay that tax along with another 65% so please stop with that tired argument. 9 seconds ag I support the spring bear season, and I fully endorse the proposed rules. What is wrong with you people????? Have we not done enough to completely destroy, minimize, decimate and or eradicate species of Mother Earth? The white man feels he is entitled to do as he pleases. He feels it's him mow down these poor, innocent animals who live in their own habitats. Which the white man has decreased in large numbers every year. Soon their will not be anything left to hunt. Then what will the white privileged I high powered rifle hunt then??????? Bears gone. Wolves gone. Deers gone. Everything gone. Then what??? Cats and dogs??? This world sucks. There is absolutely zero kindness left. They were here first and so were the. White man stole their land, displaced them, murdered them and now they continue to hunt any animal left. I feel so sad. We just spent months trying to restore wolf protections. Now this !!! I vehemently, vehemently OPPOSE THE SPRING BEAR HUNT! OPPOSE the bear hunt! I support the spring bear season and the proposed rules. Regulated, licensed hunting has literally never had a negative impact on any long-term wildlife populations. To assume otherwise is fantasy. This season is fully su considering the robust population of black bear in our state. Fight habitat loss! Extremely oppose the bear hunt. It is inhumane and utterly vile. Those that prey upon innocent creatures are truly sick. It is human overpopulation that causes limited natural space for bears to be free as they should be. Hunting bears in THEIR OWN SANCTUARY should be FORBIDDEN and SEVERELY PUNISHED. NO BEAR HUNTING!!!!!!!!!!! Super duper ultimate superne support this rule. Strongly oppose the bear hunt. I. Grown "men" need to do something other than terrorize innocent creatures. It's pathetic OPPOSE the Spring Bear Hunt! abundant in natural food sources and wait for the hungry bears to arrive. As an umbrella species, bears play a significant role in our forest ecosystems. Many other species rely on their existence. Bears are also responsible for a vital amount of seed dispersal, dispersing more seeds than birds. When bear populations decline, so do the number of plant species found in their ecosystems.

I am writing with concern about the renewed proposal to allow spring bear hunts. I observed the November, 2021 discussion and the vote denying the hunt. Bringing this issue back to the table without any new substantive scientific	3/6/2022 6:28 PM	Online Survey evidence in support for a spring hunt is unacceptable. What is even more concerning is that despite the fact that substantive scientific evidence supporting the hunt does not exist, this new rule proposal will make the hunt permanent

The proposed spring bear hunt has no scientific backing, does not meet any management goal, is unwarranted, and is harmful to the bear population at this critical stage of their life.

--- It is clear that neither science or management concerns are a part of the proposal annual spring bear hunt. For decades, the hunt was held with the stated purpose of addressing "management needs". This year no data was provided to support those needs. Now, even though WDFW has admitted that the hunt is not effective at addressing any of the concerns, it is proposing a continuation of the hunt on an annual basis. For what purpose? If the original objectives are no longer a concern, then there should be no need for a hunt.

I suspect that the real motive behind this proposal is to provide an annual spring recreational opportunity for a small number of bear hunters. Only 3% of Washington's population hunts. A smaller percentage takes part in the spring bear hunt

In the November 2021 Commissioner meeting, Commissioner Smith raised the following concern: "We don't know exactly what our bear population is because the model, by our own admission, is not that reliable...and we've doubled the harvest limit." The latest science by WDFW biologists shows that bear densities and mortality rates vary widely across the state and that bear populations may be up to 50% lower than previously thought in many areas. Even as the science states that there are fewer bears in the state, WDFW is allowing people to kill more of them. What population data will be used to support a spring bear hunt?

- --- Washington is singling out bears as the only species, aside from turkeys, to be hunted in the spring. Because spring is a stressful and critical time for all wildlife populations as they recover from winter and rear their young, Washington does not allow spring hunting of any other species except turkeys. There is no spring hunting of elk, deer and ducks. There is no rational reason for making an exception for black bears. Killing bears shortly after they emerge from their den in the spring is not considered ethical or "fair chase" hunting. Spring is when bears are at their most vulnerable stage. The chance of killing females with hidden cubs is likely, as it is difficult to distinguish males from females. It is irresponsible to provide for the pleasure and fun of recreational hunters in the spring. The majority of Washingtonians do not support this activity.
- --- Cancelling spring bear hunts will not impact hunter "opportunity". Because the spring hunt does not have a separate "bag limit", bear hunters can reach their "bag" limit within the extended hunting season decided by WDFW in 2019. Bear hunters can still kill the same number of bears each year—they will just have to kill them later in the season.
- --- Wildlife is a public asset, which the state holds in trust to manage on behalf of all current and future Washingtonians. The killing of our wildlife is a grave act and should always be taken very seriously. While it may meet the recreational desires of a very small percentage of Washington citizens, the vast majority of Washington's population opposes these hunts. Black bears are important predators and they deserve to be respected, valued, and "managed" as contributors We strongly oppose all hunts!

The science backs up no hunting because during spring that's when bears are at their most vulnerable especially with their cubs cuz they've just come out of hibernation. To kill time you're putting a strain on our eco system. Every living creature has a purpose to their existence, that's facts backed by science. No hunting, we've already destroyed so much already. Stop this senseless act and open your eyes to real modern day science please!

Wow. Just reading through some of the comments left here made me wonder why any of you would volunteer your time to deal with these issues. I thank you for taking the time and putting up with the various comments that are at best	3/6/2022 7:16 PM	Online Survey clearly inappropriate at most are based on emotion as opposed to facts and science. I do support the spring bear hunt and ask that you follow the science and facts as this state has done in so many other instances, including COVID. The science and facts show that the population of black bears is robust and the hunt does not impact the sustainability of the black bear population at all. The actual number of projected harvests of black bears during the spring hunt is minimal and does not pose a threat of impact on the population. Follow the science and facts and allow the spring bear hunt. Thank you for your time.
Very much disagree with the proposal. Please vote no on the hunt. I am a travel RN and your hospitals need us, but I and many of my colleagues will not come to assist your state if you insist on this hunt. It is in no way necessary, but	3/6/2022 7:17 PM	Online Survey appears an excuse to appease a few hunters and nothing else. Makes Washington state look backwater and no place I and others want to come to help out. I will be keeping a large page of travel RN's aware of the decision either way.
	0/0/0000 = 10 011
if this happens, I will encourage a boycott of Washington state. Hunting is murder, and should be illegal. It endangers the survival of the species, encourages cruelty to animals, and is completely unacceptable. End these murder events.	3/6/2022 7:18 PM	Online Survey

I OPPOSE. ban it permanantly. I strongly oppose the annual bear hunt. The insatiable bloodlust that humans exhibit never ceases to shock and disgust me. Our horrendous disregard for the wellbeing of animals presupposes that their lives are somehow less valuable than our own. Considering no other species on earth has done as much damage to this planet and every living creature on it than our own, one could argue quite the opposite. Our ungodly behaviour thus far has been absolutely disgraceful. Animals should not be treated as commodities to use, abuse or murder at will. They are living beings with thoughts and feelings much like our own. They have as much right to life as we do.	3/7/2022 3:25 AM 3/7/2022 3:30 AM	Online Survey Online Survey

The deer and elk are all fine, nature knows how to keep itself in check without humans stepping in. We think we're doing our planet a favour so we justify the killings and destruction, but fact based evidence proves that humans are the most destructive and no we do not help no bear population or deer or elk or any by killing and hunting. Look at Chernobyl and Japan. Once humans left all of wildlife is now flourishing. No spring beat hunt!

85% of people in Western states disapprove of spring bear hunting.

Bears reproduce very slowly and are highly susceptible to overkill.

A female only reaches adulthood at approximately four years of age. She then gives birth to 2-3 cubs/year and has litters only every 2-3 years (depending on food resources, which are compromised by increasing wildfires and drought). Trophy hunters target breeding adults, which disrupts the animals' social structure and further slows reproduction.

Holding a spring season hunt results in orphaned bear cubs. During the spring season, sows are still nursing cubs. The death of a sow usually results in the death of the cubs by starvation.

State wildlife officials and scientists agree there is no way to prevent cubs from being orphaned in spring bear hunting seasons.

Hunting bears does not make people safer, nor does it stop human-bear conflicts. Rather than putting time and resources into opening a black bear hunting season, the Commission should instead be focused on expanding public education about non-lethal preventative measures.

Numerous studies cite the fact that killing bears doesn't stop human-bear conflicts, but it does radically reduce bear population sizes, which is not desirable or needed.

Bear hunts do not reduce conflicts because trophy hunters generally remove non-problem bears from the population; that is, the individuals not involved in nuisance behaviors. Instead, hunters attempt to target large, male bears to acquire an impressive trophy, but bears living near humans are typically unavailable to hunters because hunting is not permitted in urban areas.

This trophy bear hunt is unethical and unjustified.

Bear hunting isn't science-based and serves no legitimate management purpose.

Bears are rarely hunted for anything other than trophies.

The hunt is out of line with Washington's values and hunting ethics. Spring season is when bears are at their most vulnerable state, weak from hunger and winter hibernation.

Current scientific understanding acknowledges bears as feeling, thinking, self-aware beings that undoubtedly value their lives and wellbeing. Accordingly, ethical coexistence demands respect and consideration for bears in relevant policies and regulations. Increasing opportunities to kill more bears explicitly promotes views contrary to ethical coexistence and holistic scientific understanding.

Black bears should be protected - they are an important umbrella species and ecological actors who increase the biodiversity of ecosystems.

Black bears contribute community benefits through their top-down regulatory effects on ecosystems.

Black bears are important in maintaining the ecological systems in forests. Through their foraging habits, bears disperse seeds across vast distances — even more seeds than birds. They open up forest canopies and improve soil health through their various behaviors, including spreading marine-derived nitrogen into the forest surrounding salmon streams.

Bears cause small-scale ecological disturbance to the canopy that allows sun to filter to the forest floor increasing biodiversity.

Climate related impacts seriously threaten Washington's bears. Given these uncertainties, stopping human-caused mortality should be prioritized over hunter demand. Extreme climate events catalyzed by climate change, such as record-level wildfires in 2021, late season frosts, and droughts, have negative impacts on bears. Save the bears

I oppose the spring bear hunt We hope that WA state will reconsider and STOP the trophy, spring bear hunt making a legal annual event. Spring bear hunting is unethical, unnecessary and abhorrent! So many reasons; Bears reproduce very slowly and are highly susceptible to overkill. Hunting bears does not make people safer, nor does it stop human-bear conflicts. Black bears need to be protected as they are an important umbrella species and ecological actors who increase the biodiversity of ecosystems. Shall we go into the sentient being issue? Repeating: we are in opposition of the Spring bear hunt, no trophy killings in WA state, please. There is no justification for this "sport".

As a wildlife biologist who sees the devastation caused by Predators. It's time to act for protecting the innocent cubs, fawns, and calves that are being killed by the predators. 100% back the biologist and the Department who have shown this hunt is justified and needed. Vote yes on spring bear. I am completely opposed to the spring bear hunt. It has no place in a civilized society. Please don't pander to the cruelty of hunters. The science supports having a spring bear season. So we should listen to the biologists and not our own feelings. I support the Spring Black Bear Hunt. Follow the science and continue with the hunt Science clearly shows lethal control is ineffective in managing wild populations, and killing bears just leaving hibernation is cruel and unsporting. The commission already voted against this hunt, revisiting the issue because of pressure from hunters undermines the commission's standing and will only lead to vociferous calls to the Governor to rework the commission entirely, as it won't be trusted as not being simply a shill for hunters. I oppose the bear hunt We are opposed to the spring bear hunt. There's no reasonable justification. Here are a few reasons we object to the trophy hunting of bears: 1) Climate related impacts seriously threaten Washington's bears. With these uncertainties, stopping human-caused mortality could be prioritized over hunter demand. We have already taken a good portion of their habitat! 2) Protection of the Black bears is in order - they are an important umbrella species and ecological actors who increase the biodiversity of ecosystems. They open up forest canopies and improve soil health through their various behaviors, including spreading marine-derived nitrogen into the forest surrounding salmon streams. 3) Trophy bear hunt is unethical and unjustified. We don't understand how the killing of bears in their most vulnerable state is acceptable. Where is the "sport", where is the challenge in this activity? 4) We've lost our respect for Nature. I'm in support of spring bear hunting and these open comments are ridiculous, I harvested over 30 bears, never had a bear with cubs yet, thanks! I support spring bear I support spring bear I am a resident of Washington State and live in a rural wild area where I awaken to hunters shooting off guns for deer and elk during hunting season. I understand and respect those who need to hunt to live and eat. Hunting belong being essential to your life should only be done to control extreme populations of wildlife but this proposal to hunt for black bears is especially offensive in that it is completely unfounded scientifically and unneccessary for the black bear population since it is not large enough for this type of open hunting and controls on this species. I study animals and wildlife and this proposal hunting is of no value to the community of Washington State and I consider it an abuse of laws to allow this type of hunting when the species is already in decline in numbers and very often not a threat to humans nor do they choose to be in human areas. It is only the timber and lumber industry that wants this hunting of bears to clear their way to removing what is left of our forests. Having witnessed and having monitored the logging trucks in just Pacific County in one year it is over 95,000,000 trees that have been removed from this area. How are species suppose to exist if you open them up to hunting and removal of their habitats. This is a waste of animal life for no purpose except to "Hunt" and "Murder". Most of the comments "against" the spring bear season have nothing to do with the "spring" season. It's just people who want to end hunting, period. No logical argument. Just "stop shooting bears". Wildlife management includes	3/7/2022 11:35 AM	Online Survey nunting. What is the argument for ending the SPRING season. Everything I have seen has been very thin. This is a special draw tag, sparingly issued to people that spend YEARS trying to draw it. Those lucky hunters focus on large bears without cubs. Basically, this is a season geared towards removing large, male bears from the population. Those are the bears that are most devastating to our deer fawns and elk calves. That's how you manage wildlife. So, what is the problem with the spring season?

WDFW biologists have data that illustrate how rare lactating sow harvest is, and in those few cases I'd be willing to bet that the sow's cubs had died from predatory or other natural causes and were without cubs when harvested. I do not know of a single sportsperson who would ever consider shooting a sow with a cub. The biology supports this hunt, populations support this hunt, bears are a renewable resource that are great table fare and a challenging quarry. What a great opportunity for sportsmen and women to get outdoors and pursue their passion in the Spring. Many other states also offer Spring seasons and ple reports suggest that WA has the highest bear population in the lower 48 states. I support science-based season setting that provides opportunity to the population that provides the most financial support to wildlife - hunters and men. Thanks. Dear Responsible Parties,

I am vehemently opposed to spring bear hunts in my state of Washington, as well as all others. How obscene, to encourage killing of bears when they are first coming out of and groggy from hibernation. Can we verify we are not killing nursing mothers!? Come on! Add poaching and illegal baiting and it violates all things ethical about hunting and membership in the human race.

For all we know, bears are being over hunted (managed) in WA. Where's the valid, scientifically derived data? Please, let's use ethics and science to drive our decision-making. STOP these spring bear hunts. Advocate for coexistence. Let's do something Washingtonians can be proud of.

Thank you.

Dear Responsible Parties, I vehemently support spring bear hunts in my state of Washington, as well as all others. Help do the right things and ensure spring bear season, to support all wildlife for future generations.
Thank you. Concerned Citizen. Please, no spring hunt. Bears are not there for people to harvest. They are fellow creatures with feelings similar to ours and with just as much right to live as we have. Denial of this fact is only to make it easier to kill bears. Trophy hunters do not deal mainly with problem bears but with the biggest. Bears coming out of hibernation are in no condition to provide good "sport". There is no guarantee, in spite of what the regulations may say, that a hunter will recognize a sow with cubs.	3/7/2022 2:07 PM	Online Survey

I am NOT supporting this selfish practice. I am tired of seeing systematic murder of the wildlife. We are part of ecosystem; we are not the ones who commands it. If hunters believe that hunting animals is part of the conservation, why we do not start exterminating the root of all this ecological catastrophe: Humans. A female only reaches adulthood at approximately 4 years of age. She then gives birth to 2-3 cubs/year and has litters only every 2-3 years (depending on food resources, compromised by increasing wildfires and drought). Trophy hunters	3/7/2022 5:19 PM	Online Survey target breeding adults, disrupts the animals' social structure and further slows reproduction.
Holding a spring season hunt results in orphaned bear cubs. During the spring season, sows are still nursing cubs. The death of a sow usually results in the death of the cubs by starvation. State wildlife officials and scientists agree there is no way to prevent cubs from being orphaned in spring bear hunting seasons.
scate winding outcolds and successful state for its own by prevent cubes from being or private on spiring bear nutning seasons. Hunting bears does not make people safer, nor does it stop human-bear conflicts. Rather than putting time and resources into opening a black bear hunting season, the Commission should instead be focused on expanding public education about non-lethal preventative measures.
Numerous studies cite killing bears doesn't stop human-bear conflicts, but it does radically reduce bear population sizes, which is not desirable or needed.
Bear hunts do not reduce conflicts because trophy hunters generally remove non-problem bears from the population; that is, the individuals not involved in nuisance behaviors. Instead, hunters attempt to target large, male bears to acquire an impressive trophy, but bears living near humans are typically unavailable to hunters because hunting is not permitted in urban areas.
This trophy bear hunt is unethical and unjustified.
Bear hunting isn't science-based and serves no legitimate management purpose.
Bears are rarely hunted for anything other than trophies. NOT many will eat bear meat!!!
The hunt is out of line with Washington's values and hunting ethics. Spring season is when bears are at their most vulnerable state, weak from hunger and winter hibernation. Current scientific understanding acknowledges bears as feeling, thinking, self-aware beings undoubtedly value their lives and wellbeing. Accordingly, ethical coexistence demands respect and consideration for bears in relevant policies and regulations. Increasing opportunities to kill more bears explicitly promotes views contrary to ethical coexistence and holistic scientific understanding.
Black bears should be protected - they are an important umbrella species and ecological actors who increase the biodiversity of ecosystems!!!!!!!!!!!!!
Black bears contribute community benefits through their top-down regulatory effects on ecosystems.
Black bears are important in maintaining the ecological systems in forests. Through their foraging habits, bears disperse seeds across vast distances — even more seeds than birds. They open up forest canopies and improve soil health through their various behaviors, including spreading marine-derived nitrogen into the forest surrounding salmon streams.
Bears cause small-scale ecological disturbance to the canopy allows sun to filter to the forest floor increasing biodiversity.
Climate related impacts seriously threaten Washington's bears. Given these uncertainties, stopping human-caused mortality should be prioritized over hunter demand. Extreme climate events catalyzed by climate change, such as record-level wildfires in 2021, late season frosts, and droughts, have negative impacts on bears, in particular through habitat destruction and reductions in food sources. DO NOT KILL BEARS EVER! ALLOW THEM FREEDOM TO LIVE!!!

My viewpoint is innately plagued with a bias, but after reading all of the documentation listed in relation to this request for response - I have some questions and comments I hope you can ponder.

- 1) How did you feel comfortable removing the entirety of spring bear seasons when you did not have an abundance of population number for all but one of the regions. Given the varying population densities and no concrete answer as to their relation to carrying capacity, or the optimal capacity of each region?
- 2) How did you feel comfortable removing a hunting season that has been in place for 40+ years, when your answer to estimated growth rates is "We don't currently have this information."
- 3) Given the current estimate of Washington's bear population to be 20,000, the growth rate of the population estimate to be between 9-12%, and the 10 year total harvest amount to be 1019 bears (102 bears a year). This implies that the spring bear season puts the percentage of population growth to 95% of what it estimated to be (20,000* 10% = 2,000/yr 102 (Spring Kills) = 1900 Bear Population increase a year. 1900/2000 = 95%.

Given that we do not even have an accurate number on bear population growth and with a 4% Growth estimated swing (9% (1800 Bears) to 12% (2400 Bears), i dont see how you could make the determination 102 bears harvested a year during the spring season is detrimental to the population when there is a 600 bear difference in what the population growth looks like. Even further, given the reintroduction of another predator into the ecosystem - and your answer to abundance of population listed earlier - you have no way of knowing if the current growth rate is even sustainable in the ever changing landscape of Washington's backcountry.

I love spring bear hunting. It's my favorite season of the year. That being said, if you could show me how it is necessary to close down the hunt for the survival of the population - I would be the first person to put down their rifle. Even then, being a hunter, my knee-jerk reaction is to say - "No, don't close it." - but I can't do that either - because while the math leads me to believe the season is safe for the population - you do not have the answers that make me 110% certain.

All of this to ask you, and hopefully have you ask yourself - Why did you feel comfortable making the determination the season is detrimental to the population?

Rather than opening a black bear hunting season, the Commission should instead expand public education about non-lethal preventative measures. killing bears doesn't stop human-bear conflicts. And the public can also learn about living with other wildlife.
Bear hunts do not reduce conflicts because bears living near humans can't be hunted.
Black bears are important in maintaining forests. Bears disperse seeds across vast distances, they open up forest canopies, and bring fish carcasses into some forests which brings nutrition to the forest

I totally oppose to Bear Hunting, a practice that favors extinction of the species. For those hunter supporters claiming, "let's follow the science", here is a scientist data from Current Biology Journal, (Gross, M. 2019): "Although much of the terrestrial megafauna has already disappeared and average body size of animals has shrunk as a consequence, hunting continues to shift the size distribution of animals in favor of the smaller ones that are less attractive targets for	3/8/2022 9:47 AM	Online Survey hunters." "Whether animals are hunted for food or for amusement, the markets drive unsustainable hunting around the globe. With biodiversity already on the brink of a sixth mass extinction, it is high time to put a stop to these practices." This is REAL SCIENCE proving that hunting is unsustainable nowadays.

This isn't about emotion over science the wildlife department is archaic and funded by hunters with hunting license fees. Actual fact based science backs against hunting, it does our ecosystem no good whatsoever, if anything we make it worse. This is evolutionary wrong to hunt, especially with the science based facts that we now currently have. Trophy hunting needs to be outlawed and so does population hunting. Humans are the most populated and cause the most destruction on this earth, we're not hunting each other to keep everything balanced because we know ethically and morally it is wrong, not to mention scientifically. This isn't about emotion over science the wildlife department is archaic and funded by hunters with hunting license fees. Actual fact based science backs against hunting, it does our ecosystem no good whatsoever, if anything we make it worse. This is evolutionary wrong to hunt, especially with the science based facts that we now currently have. Trophy hunting needs to be outlawed and so does population hunting. Humans are the most populated and cause the most destruction on this earth, we're not hunting each other to keep everything balanced because we know ethically and morally it is wrong, not to mention scientifically. So what makes hunters think killing an animal in its own territory, which humans already have taken so much of, justifiable? No to bear hunt. Please stop the bear hunt they deserve to live just as we do. We are all animals just a different species. It's 2022 have compassion and stop needless killing of innocent sentient beings. Hubert Reeves (born 1932, Canadian astrophysicist and author): "Humans are the dumbest species! He worships an invisible god and kills a visible nature, unaware that the nature he destroys is this invisible god he worships." Animals matter! So let us create a world that cares for animals. This extreme cruelty towards innocent sentient beings cannot be accepted, ever. So please, make sure to make policies that are in favour of the animals and that does not just look at the conveniency of humans. humans do not own this planet and have no right to decide that other species should die because humans find them inconvenient or because they find killing "fun". I strongly oppose the bear hunt. Such a cruel sport! Let them live their lives. I oppose the bear hunting that is supposed to occur in the Spring. Please see that this cruel and barbaric practice stops. Please show compassion towards our other nonhuman living, sentient beings. It is time. God is watching!!! Do any of you have a conscious!!! This isn't about emotion over science the wildlife department is archaic and funded by hunters with hunting license fees. Actual fact based science backs against hunting, it does our ecosystem no good whatsoever, if anything we make it worse. This is evolutionary wrong to hunt, especially with the science based facts that we now currently have. Trophy hunting needs to be outlawed and so does population hunting. Humans are the most populated and cause the most destruction on this earth, we're not hunting each other to keep everything balanced because we know ethically and morally it is wrong, not to mention scientifically. So what makes hunters think killing an animal in its own territory, which humans already have taken so much of, justifiable? No to bear hunt. Please stop the bear hunt they deserve to live just as we do. We are all animals just a different species. It's 2022 have compassion and stop needless killing of innocent sentient beings. Please do not remove the year from the amendment. Making the spring bear hunt a perpetual event without review is dangerous and lacking in science. Bears may be more visible to humans due to habitat encroachment and higher number of bear sightings may have nothing to do with robust populations and everything to do with bears on the brink - literally of wild and urban convergence. Thus removing the year from this document will potentially ignore reviewing and assessing bear numbers, at a time when wildlife is very much vulnerable and facing extreme weather events and environmental conditions. DO NOT REINSTATE the bear hunt!!!! IMMORAL, DEPLORABLE!!! Those despicable killers live to kill! They start by killing innocent animals then what's next we all know where that leads. Please stop pandering to the psychopathic killers and STOP THE BEAR KILLING. What kind of special maggot kills mother bears and leaves the cubs to die? I strongly oppose the bear hunt, I vote no I just saw a comment I Put all the hunters on an island and let them hunt eachother. Leave the bears alone you psychopaths. 100% support spring bear and hunting. The opposition is so full of hypocrisy it absolutely staggering. Your state of Washington sure sounds a backward primitive crap place to be . The animals have more right than you obnoxious people to be there , you idiots only stole the land from the Indians . Thank god I live in a free country Great Britain Not the land of the big brave crap hunters , killing little animals .still I guess that's how some of you pathetic Americans get an erection . Removing the year from the rule makes the rule a permanent one. This is unacceptable and would remove the requirement for data-driven annual re-approvals.
Spring bear hunts inevitably orphan bear cubs and leave them to die. The hunts occur when the sows are still nursing cubs. Even though the new proposed rule purports to prohibit the killing of sows with cubs, State wildlife officials and other experts agree there is no way to prevent cubs from being orphaned during spring bear hunting. Hunters are unable to distinguish between female and male bears, and nursing mothers will often stow their cubs in a safe place out of sight when they forage during the spring.
Only 15% of people in Western states approve of spring bear hunting. Because of the stress that spring hunting puts on all wildlife populations as they recover from winter and rear their young, Washington does not allow spring hunting of any other species except turkey. Spring bear hunting violates basic principles of ethical hunting and "fair chase." In spring, black bears are at their most vulnerable state, weak from hunger and sluggish from hibernation. Food is scarce, requiring bears to forage in clearings with no cover.
Hunting bears is not "harvesting" anything; it's killing creatures that are an essential part of our ecosystem. Killing bears is not "conservation."
The science some hunters are referring to is so aged and dated that it does not hold up in any ruling. The only reason this is still ongoing is because hunters pay "science in wildlife" the conservation department that hadn't been updated	3/8/2022 12:04 PM	Online Survey

It's been noted on social media & in updates to various petitions that individuals are commenting multiple times. From what I've noted, the hunters started it and then the opposition joined in. In this day & age of computers, why is this site not better equipped to stop people from commenting more than once? Because of this situation, the validity of the comments, and the number of comments for vs. against, has become questionable.	3/8/2022 12:12 PM	Online Survey

I wouldn't call it "Sport", I would call it MURDERING. Why would you want to kill something so innocent? Something that doesn't want trouble with us? Those hunters just want to kill for the thrill of it. Who'd want to support that kind of behaviour? If people support the mudering of the animals just for fun then they are not humans at all (and shouldn't even deserve to have a life). Those people don't have a heart or compassion for any animals or even other humans at al I will NOT support that "sport". Animals are just doing what they are naturally doing before humans even existed. Every animals on this planet have a role in maintaining the ecosystem and the balance of nature. You wipe them all then this planet will be fcked up. You will have a WHOLE LOT of problems. People that kill for fun or allows it are WEAK and are COWARDS. Don't try to hide it, it is true. Deep down you know this will cause a whole lot of problems. If anyone is educated, should understand this. I am sure there are other ways to control any over population of animals the right way. Just gotta think instead of taking the nasty, easy way out that they call it "sport". Remember it is called MURDERING. DO NOT support it!! Have a good rule in place and save animals.	II. I oppose allowing Spring bear hunts. 3/8/2022 12:29 PM Online Survey

Removing the year from the rule makes the rule a permanent one. This is unacceptable and would remove the requirement for data-driven annual re-approvals.

Spring bear hunts inevitably orphan bear cubs and leave them to die. The hunts occur when the sows are still nursing cubs. Even though the new proposed rule purports to prohibit the killing of sows with cubs, State wildlife officials and other experts agree there is no way to prevent cubs from being orphaned during spring bear hunting. Hunters are unable to distinguish between female and male bears, and nursing mothers will often stow their cubs in a safe place out of sight when they forage during the spring.

Only 15% of people in Western states approve of spring bear hunting. Because of the stress that spring hunting puts on all wildlife populations as they recover from winter and rear their young, Washington does not allow spring hunting of any other species except turkey. Spring bear hunting violates basic principles of ethical hunting and "fair chase." In spring, black bears are at their most vulnerable state, weak from hunger and sluggish from hibernation. Food is scarce, requiring bears to forage in clearings with no cover.

Cruel, barbaric & needs to end.	3/8/2022 12:52 PM	Online Survey
Opposed to spring hunting if wa bears. It's cruel and wrong especially at this time of year.	3/8/2022 12:52 PM	Online Survey only weak minded people hunt animals from 100's of yds away and call it sport. I'd like to see them one on one with a bear and no weapons!	3/8/2022 12:52 PM	Online Survey
No to Spring Bear Hunt. Hunting is so outdated and unnecessary. We are in the 21st century not the stone age.	3/8/2022 12:52 PM	Online Survey
It is likely that offspring will be killed as well as mothers looking after offspring. There is no need to hunt society has moved on hasn't it?	3/8/2022 12:52 PM	Online Survey
Hunting bears in spring Wa ? Hell NO	3/8/2022 12:53 PM	Online Survey
Yes to spring bear hunting. Follow our state mandate to allow opportunity when populations allow. We have 20000 bears in the state in a conservative Approach. I support spring bear	3/8/2022 12:53 PM	Online Survey

God didn't create them for you to destroy. Respect their lives. I oppose the spring bear hunt. Leave them in peace. It's what we all want, isn't it? They are no different.	3/8/2022 12:54 PM	Online Survey
