Muahahahahahaahha can't wait for spring bear hunting Science over pro hunting rubbish. We are not seeing any kind of healthy biodiversity in the bear populations. Hunting will always have so much collateral damage and as well the casting off of bears and other animals from illegal hunts	3/8/2022 1:18 PM 3/8/2022 1:18 PM	Online Survey Online Survey which constantly occur. Once again the hunting associations quote numbers which would disrupt any kind of positive gains animal populations might make. As stated above Washington State has a robust population of black bears and a spring season for Black bears is necessary. Also as stated a central part of WDFW is to provide sustainable recreational hunting opportunities. Compared to	3/8/2022 4:15 PM	Online Survey neighboring states the opportunity for spring bear hunts is very low in Washington and takes many years of applying to even have an opportunity. I think it is very important to maintain a spring bear season. So yes I believe the year 2021 should be removed from the WAC. It seems very reasonable to prohibit the harvest of cubs or females with cubs so I agree with that also. I do believe that the robust bear population can support much more hunter opportunity in the spring and would like to see the number of tags increased.
I oppose this Spring Bear hunt . All it does is give "trophy hunters" a sense of accomplishment to murder innocent animals . Mankind doesn't need to manage wildlife , they do it in their own	3/8/2022 4:15 PM	Online Survey

ALL decent human beings would oppose the slaughter of bears. Bears are part of our wildlife and were put on this earth for a reason. The bear slaughterer, Mike Herz, requests people not to "stoop to the level of the emotional opinion	3/8/2022 5:26 PM	Online Survey based comments" He is such a Neanderthal that he implies that 'emotion' in a person should be derided. In fact, 'emotions' are important characteristics of a human. Which proves the point that he and his ilk are barbaric with brains		• that have not developed. Bear slaughterers have no compassion (an emotion). They are self-centred and care only for themselves. They are not concerned that they will leave depleted wildlife and, no doubt, barren lands for their descendants. For they don't care. They have no emotion.

I support spring bear hunting in Washington. We have many decades of sound science and harvest data to show that this is a sustainable hunt which does not negatively impact bear populations. The proposed language to protect sows and cubs is fine by me, although it should be noted that the targeting of sows and or cubs in the spring season is extremely, extremely rare to begin with. Most all hunters target mature males. It should also be noted that mature male bears attack sows and kill cubs not belonging to them. They do this not ensure that their own genes will be the most prevalent in the population. In addition, by killing cubs, males can get sows to go back into estrus, in hopes that they will father her next offspring. It may sound crazy to those who don't understand bear behavior, but it's the brutal truth. Allowing the harvest of mature male bears will actually prevent this from happening, which I think any person of sound mind should be in favor of. Bears also provide a healthy, organic source of meat for hunters. It may seem weird or gross simply because bear meat is not a regular part of mainstream food culture, however, for those of us who prefer to live off wild game, the meat is an excellent food source which helps us to avoid supporting the factory farm industry, which we all know contributes an awful amount to green house gas emissions and pollution of our waterways. For these reasons and many others, I support the spring bear season. We need to manage wildlife based on sound science.

Foundation whose "Twentry-five Reasons Why Hunting is Conservation" is probably the most elaborate articulation of the concept. The hunting as conservation view is also popular with gun groups like the National Rifle Association that like to conflate their second amendment advocacy with a "defense" of the hunting tradition. But it might be unexpected, and disconcerting, to learn that this view is also widely shared by the state and federal agencies charged with

The concept of killing bears classified as male to prevent them from killing cubs and raping their parents is speciesist. We do not do this to rapists who are human. We do not always do this to murderers who are human, for instance,	3/9/2022 1:10 AM	Online Survey police officers killing innocent people who are black.

There are also better ways to conserve ecosystems than humans hunting bears. When humans hunt bears, they tend to hunt the ones that they deem as stronger or larger. This, in the end, leads to disease and struggle in bear populations, as only the weak bears then survive and reproduce. Excusing the hunting of bears through conservation reasoning is not ethical nor correct.

Plus, if bears are deemed as being problematic due to how they interact with humans, humans need to figure out why bears are interacting with humans in the first place and then change their human behaviour rather than resort to killing. If bears are interacting with humans due to humans leaving their food or waste outside, humans need to take action around removing their waste from locations where bears can easily access them.

Because of these reasonings, I oppose the spring bear hunt.

Black bears represent one of the most sustainable, renewable, abundant and economically viable resources a hunting and non-hunting communities can enjoy. Black bear meat is nutritious, and delicious. Black bear hunting in spring season or the fall season is both appropriate and beneficial to numerous species of wildlife, and forest resources. Those that do not agree with bear hunting, should choose to not hunt. But a difference in lifestyle interests does not give a	3/9/2022 7:29 AM	Online Survey

We support this hunt. No to the spring bear hunt as 95% of the population are just regular people who are shocked at what we're seeing, which is wanton waste, killing for pleasure, ego and / or vanity, the use of modern weapons on animals who don't stand a chance against them, as well as the gloating. It's bad optics, and the majority of people who have always had neutral feelings about hunting are being galvanized into action, as they are as offended by these behaviors in the same way they are by poachers or animal abusers.	3/9/2022 8:14 AM 3/9/2022 8:15 AM	Online Survey Online Survey

Hunters comprise roughly 5% of the populace, a very small minority. My grandfather, father, uncles, and husband hunted. The animals were utilized; the meat was eaten and the hides were brain tanned - they didn't shoot or disrespect wildlife simply because they could. They certainly didn't pose with their firearms or ridicule the animals, none of them shot an animal and then had the audacity to say they were conservationists. In today's world, with our level of technological advancement and worldwide spatial expansion, hunting is vicious. Think about it. Primitive man was a hunter-gatherer— the same as other large predators. Inventing distant hunting tools	3/9/2022 8:52 AM	Online Survey (which allowed one to kill the victim not by direct contact, but at a distance - spears, bow-arrows, throwing devices) our species became a super-predator. No other large predator can kill the victim without direct contact with it. With the invention of firearms, a person has turned from a biological hunter into a terminator. Finally, having created modern technologies (transport, navigation, communications, and location equipment) and combining them with firearms, man became a super-terminator. Wild animals now do not have any means to defend themselves and resist this super-terminator. They are completely defenceless against a modern man who can find them and kill them anywhere and anytime, if he so desires. The passion for trophy hunting, with such a balance of power in favour of Homo sapiens, is profoundly vicious. The strong seek to protect the defenceless, not to use their superiority to satisfy some cruel and immoral obsession. Animals cannot protect themselves from people armed with modern weapons.

PROTECT CUBS! VOTE NO FOR SPRING BEAR HUNTING TO PROTECT WILDLIFE!! No spring hunt please No to spring bear hunt Let us kill the ugly hunters, that would be a wonderful hunt!!! I'm against my state opening hunting for bears in spring. Absolutely not. NO hunters is the best thing that could happen to our planet!! Get rid of these evil hunting devils!! No hunting please. We support these hunts I am against the spring bear hunt. Against Please stick to the science and not popular opinion. Only 3 % of Washington residents hunt. Asking for public comments then using these numbers of for vs against to justify removing hunting opportunities. Is just a shell game. Numbers don't lie. In the 2021 Spring season just one of 145 bears taken in the 2021 spring bear hunt was shown to be a lactating female. Other studies point to about a 2-percent cub mortality due to hunting.	3/9/2022 10:53 AM 3/9/2022 10:53 AM 3/9/2022 10:54 AM 3/9/2022 10:55 AM 3/9/2022 10:56 AM 3/9/2022 10:56 AM 3/9/2022 10:56 AM 3/9/2022 10:56 AM 3/9/2022 10:56 AM	Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey
Hunters are knowledgeable in the quarry they hunt, and have been taught how to distinguish boar from sows. The scientific facts and fish and wildlife department biologist both back the hunt.
Management of our states natural resources should not be be dictated by prioritized emotion over science.
Yes please for hunting spring bear I OPPOSE the hunt and do not support killing animals for thrills. The bear killers will accuse the opposition of being too "emotional" about the argument while falsely claiming to somehow be aiding with conservation and wildlife management. Please see their argument for what it is -self-aggrandizing and narcissistic nonsense that is used to rationalize a disgusting hobby of killing wildlife.	3/9/2022 10:56 AM 3/9/2022 10:57 AM	Online Survey Online Survey reviewing robust evidence about human hunting practice around the world, the conclusion is clear: hunting have direct effect and indirect effect in animal population affecting critical the survival of the most complex ecosystems. Please appeal to the science and BAN Bear hunting for good. WDFW's science is inherently biased. Commission members are realizing that and looking at the Big Picture through a more comprehensive lens than the myopia of "Tradition". Tradition changes culturally. The U.S. Government's abuse of funds to cater to hunters harms ecosystems and abandons the public trust in the process. Many Wildlife Agencies are designed to work on behalf of Ranchers and Hunters. Predatory animals such as bears and wolves are targeted to eliminate threats to livestock and game animals. Hunting kills ecologically critical animals and does not serve to create an ecological balance; it serves to benefit hunters and ranchers.BAN DIRTY BLOODY INDUSTRYIVOTE FOR LIFE! I am a strong supporter of hunting in general and this spring bear hunt in particular. Thee black bear population in Washington State is thriving and the spring bear hunt is a heavily regulated hunt with a limited number of tags that hasn't ever had a population level impact on black bears in Washington. There has been a lot of really good work by the WDFW to show that this spring bear hunt is saientifically sound and will not impact the population of black bears moving forward. Any opposition to this hunt is an uninformed response by people who are anti-hunting in general. I am a hunter who takes a lot of pride in knowing where my food comes from and providing my family with the best and most healthy protein I can get which comes from wild game. Hunters care much more for the animals we hunt and spend more time and money protecting the species we hunt than most anti-hunting people or group ever will. The money spend on the special permit application and tag for a spring bear will go to WDFW who will in turn use it to protect black bears as a whole	3/9/2022 12:43 PM 3/9/2022 12:44 PM 3/9/2022 12:44 PM	Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey

Their whole ethos is based on believing they have the right to kill anything they choose, irrespective of the cruelty involved to both the creature being killed and it's young that will inevitably starve to death.
They strut about as if they are brave, skilled and superior, whereas the truth is they use others to track the poor animal, use high velocity guns with powerful telescopic sights which make the kill as easy as washing the family car. There is no battle of one against one with the strongest winning, it's always one sided, only one outcome.
There is no ductive to the against one with the studies will will get a waways one subsequently one outcome. To add to the insult to the poor animal they hack its head off and mount it on the wall of their 'den' or office to brag about it to their mates.
They will take the last of these endangered creatures to the precipice of extinction unless checked, and that begs the next question, what will they turn to next?
It's a pathetic sight watching these mentally sick individuals traveling the globe simply to shoot and carve up a graceful giraffe or a magnificent leopard, something to hang on a wall.
is a patient agint watching these memory ask minutous datening ine globe simply to shoot and care up a gracting grant or a magnificant recipion, sometiming to hang on a wan. Lots of comments about "ending hunting". Nothing useable about why to end a "spring bear hunt". I support spring bear hunting on the basis that bears, like all predators need to be managed. The best way to do that is with a special draw hunt in the spring that allows a limited number of hunters the chance to hunt the biggest adult bears without cubs. Those are the bears doing the most damage to our deer and elk fawns and calves.	3/9/2022 3:35 PM	Online Survey

Do away with the spring bear hunt! 3/9/2022 4:23 PM Online Survey There is a fall bear hunt which should give hunters plenty of opportunity to kill a bear for their recreation, if that is what they need to do for fun. It's the year 2022 and, in case you haven't noticed, we're losing the planet. People need to think about what it's going to take to save it. The decline in the animal populations world wide is appalling, especially the larger animals. Let's stop killing more bears in the spring when the bears are in a weakened state and only serves to give the "hunters" an opportunity to make an easy kill. A spring bear hunt does not "manage" the bear population in any meaningful way but only serves to appease a small, but somewhat vocal, minority of people living in Washington State. Surveys have shown that most Americans do not approve of recreational or "trophy" hunting. An interesting side note: A recent study that examined the motivation for trophy hunting found that hunters glamorize the killing of an animal so as to demonstrate virility, prowess and dominance. If you want to "manage" the bears, you might start by managing the people who claim to be in conflict with bears. The bears are just being bears, people should know better. As for timber damage, here is the Commissions response to the question: What is the extent of lumber damage attributed to bears? Answer: We do not have access to this data. This information is considered proprietary to the timber companies. Please put a stop to this unnecessary spring bear hunt. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. R. Bakel Ohhh veahhh!!!! I fully support the spring bear season and this proposal. I do NOT support the spring bear hunt Please do not support the spring bear hunt, it's wrong! Please support this spring bear season!!! Totally opposed to a spring bear killing season. The Spring Bear hunt should not be allowed, please reconsider this proposal and do the right thing. The spring bear season is a valuable managment tool, source of conservation revenue, and hunter opportunity. Bear populations in Washington are at an extremely healthy level and are not at any risk of exripation, as shown by our state biologists. The number of bears on the landscape may actually be detrimental to other species who are at greater risk. The argument of protecting cubs and sows is reasonable but not valid as the majority of harvest is large boars. Additionally, one of the greatest sources of mortality for cubs in the spring is adult boars not human hunters. Hunting seasons should be dictated by sound science and wildlife management and not emotional or political ideals. Losing the spring bear season in Washington would be a tragedy and embarrassing as a lifelong Washington hunter and professional scientist. Please allow the season to remain in place with revised guidelines and preserve Washington's hunting culture and management practices.	3/9/2022 4:47 PM 3/9/2022 4:49 PM 3/9/2022 4:50 PM 3/9/2022 4:50 PM 3/9/2022 4:51 PM 3/9/2022 4:51 PM	Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey

die. But I have learned that it is a part of life and hunting has taught me that. I need meat to live, and I would much rather get that meat myself. No need for a spring bear hunt. Ban it permanently.	3/9/2022 5:01 PM	Online Survey
Why do you think allowing a spring bear hunt is a good idea? For one, how many cubs will be left to try to figure out how to survive on their own? Secondly, what is the purpose of this? Totally wrong. Leave the bears alone. They aren't hurting people. It's hard enough to survive in this world. This is a recreational hunt to just kill bears for the fun of it? NO, this should NOT be allowed! When you have to look your food in the eye, it changes you. You respect the animal and you want to conserve it's habitat and ensure that it lives a good life. I can think of nothing more respectful to a wild animal than to pursue it with fair		Online Survey Online Survey means and ethically harvest and enjoy it's meat. I gain a deeper appreciation than others because I am a hunter. I know how incredible these creatures are, and that is why I SUPPORT the spring bear hunt. It is for the greater good. If we fuss over just keeping animals "alive" without managing their populations to ensure they remain healthy - these animals may breath but they don't enjoy their best life. The ecosystems simply can't sustain an overabundance of predators.
Here to say that I am opposed to a spring bear hunt. How many people actually eat bear? Not many, most of these people want to just go kill bear and who cares about their cubs, leave them to figure life out on their own. The spring bear hunt needs to be stopped!	3/9/2022 5:05 PM 3/9/2022 5:06 PM	Online Survey Online Survey
To be clear, this spring bear hunt is meant to accomplish these primary things: protect cubs from male-bear infanticide, protect trees, increase fawn and calf survival rates, and ensure larger amounts of food are available to sows and their cubs. The spring bear hunt is not there to feed blood thirsty murderers. Please don't call hunters murderers. We work ridiculously hard for our wild meat, so don't disrespect that effort. Thank you. I support the spring bear hunt!	3/9/2022 5:09 PM	Online Survey
I oppose the spring bear hunt. I strongly oppose spring bear hunt. It's unfair to the bear and it's a cowardly hunt. We need to think and act responsible because our actions have consequences. We need to maintain balance and protect. We need to respect all living things. We need to learn how to co-exist. Everything matters in the scale of live. Everything has its purpose. We need to understand wrong choices that we make now in the end will come back to us. Let's think wisely responsible and compassionately. Let's start to make this world we live in a better place. I strongly support the spring bear hunt. Everyone I know is in favor of the very idea of it. Pretty easy to tell if a bear is over 50lbs lol. Bears eat each other without a second thought. They actually kill the cubs in order to breed the mother. What makes you think they are traumatized by that? They aren't bears from Disney movies they are real animals. As a hunter I strive to make the kill as quick and clean as possible and the utilize as much of the animal as I can. We are part of the food chain and are omnivores that are at the top. I support bear hunting as renewable resource for organic free range meat. This idea that bears are humans or even think like humans is bizarre and a complete disconnect from reality	3/9/2022 5:32 PM 3/9/2022 5:33 PM	Online Survey Online Survey
No Spring Bear Hunting. It is time that the human race grew up and realized that every life matters. How is it possible that small group of people, who only use violence and their guns, command the destiny of the entire nation wildlife? I suggest that anti-hunters (who are the majority of US citizens), native Americans, and international conservational institutions take part in these decisions. We need an objective and evidence-based point of view. WFWD, don't let a hysterical minority lead the future of our natural resources and manipulates a decision legally made in the past.	3/9/2022 5:37 PM	Online Survey

Organic certification, you are just eating toxic meat. Wow. The bears I eat don't come from downtown Seattle. They come the backcountry. Somewhere you clearly have never been. The bears I eat are far away from the rivers you have contaminated, or your garbage. Bear meat is waaaaay less contaminated or toxic than the chemical filled crap wrapped in plastic you eat. Please, don't allow the spring bear hunt in Washington to continue. Bears, as well as all other wildlife, are a natural part of the ecosystem and play an important role to the balance of that system. Humans in modern society have wreaked	3/9/2022 8:18 PM	Online Survey havoc on nature via habitat destruction to begin with and adding the additional pressure of sport hunting is a no-win situation for their ultimate success (not to say anything of it as a wasteful, unfair and unmanly practice). Real competition doesn't include a man (or a woman) with a gun (and a dog, or not) against an animal, even of that size and stature. Bear populations in Washington are very minimal compared to historical records and if someone wants to hunt and kill a bear, they should eat it because that is their sustenance, not their play time. Sincerely, Lisa Westgard

To kill a bear just coming out of hibernation is cruel and inhumane. Have we humans no compassion for mother bears with cubs? Spring bear hunting is just plain WRONG.	3/9/2022 11:42 PM	Online Survey
Hunters kill any animal they come across or any animal whose head they think would look good mounted above the fireplace—often the large, healthy animals needed to keep the population strong. And hunting creates the ideal	3/9/2022 11:42 PM	Online Survey conditions for overpopulation. After hunting season, the abrupt drop in population leads to less competition among survivors, resulting in a higher birth rate. Hunting is not the answer, it has been scientifically proven. Try controlling the	5/5/2022 11.11111	oninie survey birth rate, instead of bowing down to pressure from people who have some kind of inadequacy (either mental or physical), that makes them want to blast unsuspecting animals to make them feel better about themselves. Should people like that really be left to decide which animals live and die? In all honesty, they shouldn't even be in charge of a gun. Try coming into the 21st century and thinking of new ways to sort out the problem, instead of going with what has been done in the past, which obviously doesn't work.
Killing animals for fun/ entertainment/ tradition is an outdated concept and has no place in a modern, civilised society. Our morals have evolved and governments which still allow trophy hinting hunting, gradually introducing only minor	3/9/2022 11:46 PM	Online Survey restrictions, are behind the times. Hunting will soon die out entirely - be ahead of time and stop hunting practices. There will be overwhelming support for such decision and very minor opposition. Take the morally right step. Be leaders, not followers.

mind we are the ones who are taking over their natural habitat. We need to be taught what to do in a situation of a bear encounter. We need to be mindful and responsible not to attract them. Life is more important than profit. Killing nnocent animals is not the solution. What does it say about us human beings when we disregard life. This not the way to create balance in nature. They shouldn't be killed for our own convenience and ignorance. We can co-exist. All iving beings matter and we humans should be the protectors and guardians of the weak, innocent and the voiceless. No great animal can defend itself against a gun. It's unfair and cruel.

How is this acceptable? Why are they still being coddled? It's worrisome that people are so motivated to kill that they think it's okay to threaten humans. This is rapidly becoming the face of hunting and how hunters are viewed by the	3/10/2022 7:13 AIVI	Offinite Survey general populace. Granting more opportunities to angry people doesn't seen like a good idea for wildlife or humanity. The violent nature displayed by many hunters and the enjoyment derived from killing that we see plastered all over social media is not what hunting is about. My family subsistence hunted, they are what they killed, be it opossum or squirrel, whereas now hunters hide behind the excuse they re feeding their families while targeting the largest species and usually waiting on the best specimens, having an negative effect on species genetics. It's a sad situation that so many people are focused on the gratification of killing instead of appreciating wildlife. I very much oppose a spring bear

Prease foregot the 2022 Spring bear nunt. The decision has been voted on and decided. A member of the committee resigning does not negate their vote. It is not togical nor legal, imagine giving that illophole on every time a vote is made. Upwards of 2,000 bears have already killed in the Fall hunt already. Additionally, the ever changing environment, including climate change, habitat destruction, the time of year with just bears just coming out of hibernation, the vulnerability of mothers and their cubs, the lengthy reproductive cycle of the black bear, make it extremely remiss of WA Dept. of Fish and Game and Wildlife Commission to allow a Spring hunt only to appease the minority. More black bears have been killed in Washington (approx 18,000) than in any other state except for Alaska and Idaho since 2010. US Fish and Game are stating they had low harvest results in the Fall. That is not true. Since 2013 as reported, the Fall 2021 harvest of 2,000 bears is significantly higher on average with 1,500 bears. The last 2 years 2020 (1,947 bears) and 2019 (2,017 bears). Hunters pushing for the Spring hunt, are ignoring the scientific evidence, as well as ethical and moral reasoning. The trophy is more important than the wildlife. This is a dangerous profile for the type of hunter Washington is choosing to nurture.

The WA Dept. of Fish and Game and Wildlife Commission are also tasked with education. Ignoring facts is not reflective of a good educational foundation. Permitting a Spring hunt does not demonstrate sound judgment, nor represent good stewardship for wildlife. The WA US Fish and Game is also placing substantial weight on their Bear Identification Training Program and its ability to educate a hunter on the differences between grizzly vs black bear, male vs female, age, mother, cubs, etc. As an educator, the successful completion of any program does not always translate to proficient knowledge. As with any educational program, the parameters for passing are quite broad. Putting that "knowledge" into action during a heightened situation diminishes their knowledge and the ability to make a sound, unemotional decision. There is no mention of mandatory re-certification over time on the WA US Fish and Game website. Again, as an educator, refresher courses are instrumental in order to retain knowledge and expertise. Knowledge drops dramatically when not used on a regular basis.

Bear-human conflicts concerns have been voiced, yet I have been unable to identify actual bear-human conflicts occurring and certainly not to the extent that justifies a 2022 Spring Hunt.

The Washington Wildlife Commission is dismissing the overwhelming number of responses against holding a Spring hunt. They are also disregarding the 2019 report by the National Shooting Sports Foundation that found the majority of westerners including Washington residents opposed a Spring Hunt.

Listen to science, listen to the facts.

Facts:

Spring bear hunts are especially cruel because trophy hunters often kill mother bears with newborn cubs. These orphaned cubs cannot survive without their mothers and will inevitably die from starvation, predation or exposure to the elements. During the 2021 Washington spring bear hunt, trophy hunters killed 45 female bears, likely resulting in the orphaning and death of numerous cubs.

Bears are easy targets for trophy hunters in the spring when they're emerging from the hibernation den and lethargic from months of sleep. Bears are in poor body condition after spending the whole winter without food – especially pregnant bears, who by spring have given birth and nursed their cubs relying solely upon their fat reserves.

Mother bears may forage at long distances from their cubs, resulting in hunters often killing lactating female bears. Hunters have difficulty determining the sex and nursing status of black bears.

Research shows that spring bear hunts do not address human-bear conflicts and may even worsen conflicts. Bear biologists have warned that trying to kill our way out of conflicts will result in black bear extirpation (localized extinction) in some places. Residents must do more to prevent attracting bears to places where they don't want them.

Because of climate change, bears are out of the den for longer periods of time. Non-lethal deterrents, such as stowing garbage in bear-resistant containers, are far more effective at preventing conflicts than a spring trophy hunting season.

Bears are highly intelligent, and provide specific benefits to the ecosystem, spreading more seeds than birds, opening up forest canopies allowing sunlight to filter to the forest floor and enhancing biological diversity, and their feeding habits near riparian corridors help to fertilize trees with fish carcasses and their own nitrogen-rich urine. New research also finds that bears act as shields for gray foxes from other larger carnivores.

WDFW biologists are confident that WA has a robust black bear population, particularly in the spring bear units, and that the population can support the proposed hunt. As such, providing this hunt is consistent with statutory mandate of	t e attempting to maximize hunting opportunities.
Many of the commenters opposed to the proposed spring black bear hunt anthropomorphize black bears. These comments should be received, but they should not influence how the Commission acts relative to the spring bear season, or any other hunting season, because they are antithetical to the mission/objectives of the WDFW. The statutory scheme under which the Commission operates makes clear that fish and wildlife are not to be treated the same as people, but, instead, are to be considered and managed as resources for recreational and commercial consumption by humans. RCW 77.04.012. This includes black bears. People have a right to their opinions, but not all opinions are relevant to the Commission's decisions/analysis.
Finally, I would just echo the comments that have been/will be presented to the Commission by groups like the Inland Northwest Wildlife Council, Backcountry Hunters and Anglers, and other conservation groups made in support of the 2022 spring black bear season. An estimated 2,000 bears were massacred in fall hunts. What more do you need? Ban spring bear hunts permanently. Why are we even having this conversation?	3/10/2022 10:25 AM	Online Survey

There is no such thing as "Trophy Hunting" in Washington State. It's a farce created by anti-hunting organizations to trick the general public into thinking that hunters are hunting just for the head. IT IS REQUIRED BY LAW TO HARVEST THE MEAT. Bears are not vulnerable in the Spring and harvest statistics show most bears are harvested 6-8 weeks after leaving their dens, when they've had plenty of time to get over any lethargy from den emergence. NO spring bear hunt. Washington State black bear population is robust and an annual spring hunt with approximately 664 permits is sustainable. The changes would result in a limited, annual hunting opportunity for approximately 664 hunters who receive permits, and WDFW anticipates approximately 145 black bears would be harvested annually through this limited permit hunting opportunity. Based on the above math a hunters chance of actually harvesting a bear based on the estimates provided is 0.2183% or 0.22%. It is likely that more permits could be issued and the harvest amount would still be sustainable. According to the data from 2020 there was approximately 20,497 hunters that successfully harvested 1,947 bears. For a 10% success rate, Please bring back the spring bear hunt.	3/10/2022 11:05 AM 3/10/2022 11:05 AM 3/10/2022 11:06 AM 3/10/2022 11:06 AM 3/10/2022 11:07 AM 3/10/2022 11:07 AM 3/10/2022 11:08 AM	Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey Online Survey

yes to mothers yes to protect all wildlife. Yes TO SPRING BEAR HUNTING AND YES TO THE PROPOSALS!! Fully support spring bear hunting Strongly support We as humans are a part of nature, and so we don't ever have the right to decimate those of a less intelligent, self-aware, cognitively high-functioning species as black bears, under the preposterous pretence of spring-bear hunting being an abundant recreational opportunity. We must therefore all stand in opposition of the spring bear hunt and take action to put a permanent end to all forms of hunting of black bears (among other species of wildlife) in the region before it's too late! Make the spring bear hunt mandatory for everyone. We have to learn to protect our vulnerable wildlife If the spring bear hunt was unnecessary, I wouldn't support it. PETA agrees with this rule I support the spring bear hunt, the science backs it up. I find this bill truly disgusting - the sport of people wanting bear jerky by killing animals newly awakened, ravenous and possibly lactating is just nauseating. These creatures are emaciated, doing their best to find food. We live on a tree farm and have had spring bear sightings every year. We place wildlife cameras around the property because we love watching them. What gives us the right to destroy them for a few bear steaks and a thrill? Spring bear hunts are immoral and anachronistic. They were originally organized at the behest of the timber industry to stop hungry bears from stripping bark from trees to reach the sweet sap underneath. But the efficacy of this approach has never even been documented So the WDFW is now expected to permanently approve a spring bear hunt simply to "preserve a hunting tradition," if we are to believe hunting advocacy groups. This is circular reasoning at its worst.

Regulating that mother bears and offspring are not to be "taken," does little to mitigate the cruelty of this hunt. Bears that are starved from hibernation emerge to a world that is just starting to provide the year's food. Hunting bears at this time just increases the stress these animals are under and makes it more difficult for mother bears to raise their ofspring and for their offspring to thrive.

And mother bears are killed very year 'by accident' regardless!

Vote yes for spring bear hunting NO to wa spring hunt!

If you want to make the spring bear hunt permanent, show us how much money we are saving the timber companies. Then we can decide if we want to sell our souls for that amount.

I oppose the Spring Bear Hunt for the following reasons: Hunting in the spring when animals (whether deer, elk, bear, waterfowl, upland game birds, etc.) have their young is not good sportsmanship regardless of the species being hunted.	3/10/2022 2:26 PM	Online Survey Spring hunting always has the possibility of orphans (despite a hunter's best intentions) and thus borders on being inhumane and unethical. There are better ways to manage/reduce bear-human conflict, timber damage. Most bear-human conflict is a human-caused social and cultural issues, not a bear problem. If specific ungulate neonate predation is of concern in a specific area, then additional and better habitat for the ungulates should be addressed first and then targeted bear removal could be considered. But the broad brush of un-targeted hunting will not resolve your ungulate neonate depredation problem. Many constituents like me do not oppose hunting per se, but find activities like spring hunting, not consuming what you kill, killing contests, predator-specific hunting, and trapping mostly inhumane and unethical, and unnecessary for wildlife conservation. I know that change is hard, and it takes awhile for government policies to catch up with changing social and cultural perspectives and the perceived threat to traditions, but now is the time to start. In summary, there is no valid wildlife conservation need for a spring bear hunt, and it borders on inhumane and unethical. Therefore, the Commission and WDFW should error on the side of restraint and caution and permanently ban the spring bear hunt. Thank you.

I oppose the spring bear hunt. Bears only exhibit aggression when they believe there is imminent danger to themselves or their cubs. We cannot simply continue to kill our natural wildlife and destroy the balance of nature because of	3/10/2022 2:27 PM	Online Survey unfounded claims of aggression, because someone wants a "trophy" or because someone feels that they are simply "in the way". We must learn to live with nature as we continue to encroach on our wildlife's natural habitat rather than		, decimating them. It's bad enough that hunters are allowed to enter bear caves, lure them outside where they can be killed in the open, and use traps that cause excruciating pain until death. Don't open the state to more demise for the bears. It's just wrong.

Spring bear hunts are cruel. These bears are already under great stress from just emerging from hibernation. And hunting bears at this time only increases the stress of these bears.
always thought that hunting was viewed as a sport, a way that helps to control problem bears and possible over population in areas, but this is nothing more than a form of torture.
nstead of considering the interest of hunters, consider what's best for the bears for once.
Thank you for considering my views and I hope you will oppose the amendments to WAC 228-425-080.

Loppose the spring bear hunt. Bear cubs need instruction from their moms for two whole years before they can fully fend for themselves and find appropriate foods. Forcing cubs to fend for themselves by killing their moms can easily turn them into "nuisance" animals, negating any good (if there is any) that might come from killing the adult bears.	3/10/2022 3:50 PM	Online Survey

Keeping, not only the spring bear, but all hunting seasons open allows hunters a chance to pass the love of the wilderness, adventure and respect for God's creatures to the next generation.

Hunting can be viewed by some as barbaric, however, most hunters I know and associate with have to utmost love and passion for all forms of life. It is seen as a privilege to take a life for these purposes and are thankful for it.

Hunt with passion, Hunt with respect.

I strongly oppose WDFW's proposed amendments to WAC 220-415-080.	3/10/2022 4:05 PM	Online Survey

Spring bear hunts are immoral and anachronistic. They were originally organized at the behest of the timber industry to stop hungry bears from stripping bark from trees to reach the sweet sap underneath. But the efficacy of this approach has never even been documented! So the WDFW is now expected to permanently approve a spring bear hunt simply to "preserve a hunting tradition," if we are to believe hunting advocacy groups. This is circular reasoning at its worst

Regulating that mother bears and offspring are not to be "taken," does little to mitigate the cruelty of this hunt. Bears that are starved from hibernation emerge to a world that is just starting to provide the year's food. Hunting bears at this time just increases the stress these animals are under and makes it more difficult for mother bears to raise their ofspring and for their offspring to thrive.

And mother bears are killed very year 'by accident' regardless!

If you want to make the spring bear hunt permanent, show us how much money we are saving the timber companies. Then we can decide if we want to sell our souls for that amount.

We are better than this, Washington.

Wdfw should make more tags available as every year they hire companies to euthanize bears in conflict areas. These bears then go to waste instead of being harvested. California is a prime example of this. They got rid of the hunt and	3/10/2022 4:08 PM	Online Survey now pay thousands and thousands of dollars to private companies to mitigate bears and cougars instead of gaining money to go towards conservation. Stopping the hunt doesn't stop the killing of bears it merely means they will not be

Strongly against spring bear hunts. I support the spring bear hunt. The deer and elk populations are really declining and a properly conducted bear hunt would help fawn and calf survival rates. In 2017, my son and I had Mt. View bear tags and he drew a archery bull tag. Between scouting and hunting that spring, late summer and fall, the number of bears spotted was 36. I am sure we spotted some twice, but that is a robust population. We harvested 1 boar and 1 bull. When I started hunting a local elk herd on private land in Whitman County, I was surprised by the number of calves per cows in the herd. I never saw that many surviving calves in groups of elk while scouting and hunting in the Blue Mountains units. This last fall, I spent time with friends while they rifle hunted the Dayton unit. That area is like a desert now compared to a decade ago. Very few elk and deer around and a new hunter in the group was stalked by a Cougar. Strongly against spring bear hunts. I support the spring bear hunts. I support the spring bear hunt. The deer and elk populations are really declining and a properly conducted bear hunt would help fawn and calf survival rates. In 2017, my son and I had Mt. View bear tags and he drew a archery buil tag. Between scotting and hunting that spring, late summer and fall, the number of bears spotted was 36. I am sure we spotted some twice, but that is a robust population. We harvested 1 boar and 1 buil. When I started hunting a local elk herd on private land in Whitman County, I was surprised by the number of alwes per cows in the herd. I never saw that many surviving calves in groups of elk while scouting and hunting in the Blue Mountains units. This last fall, I spent in the wint of the days of the hunted the Dayson unit. That area is like a deser now compared to a decade ago. Nor yer we lik and deer around and an ewe hunter in the group was staked by a Cougar. He didn't have a tag and had to yell and wave his arms to get it to turn around and trot away. The Mt. View unit elk and deer are doing poorly also. The deer and elk populations need as much help as they can get. A spring bear hunt would be one way to help reduce predator populations to reasonable levels. No spring bear hunts I oppose the spring bear hunt. Vou know who else loves to kill and hunt bears? Putin! What does that say about you hunters? Evil people doing evil acts and enjoying it. for hunters. We were successful here in Oregon in banning the spring	hunt back in the late 1980's. Probably because of three fundamental reasons: 1) The massive amount of poaching and illegal activity that is part of every bear hunter's
DNA, 2) the thousands of other animals that are killed and / or terrorize	ted by uncontrolled dogs 3) the state actually has no idea how many bear live in any specific area at any one time. That they determine the next year's bear population based on how many carcasses were turned in the previous year is 1929	0's statistical math. Then again, WDFW hasn't actually improved much since thenLastly, define sustainable. It's a failed concept based on the ridiculous theory of Maximum Sustainable Yield postulated (yeah, in the 1920's) by Aldo	Deopold, who's alter they worship at every time they meet. Newsflash: it was BS then, it's BS now. WDFW, you are supposed to make sure all wildlife in your state exists for all the people of the state, not just your select few fellow hu	nters. News flash #2: Hey fellas, ever wonder where your wif is when you're out with the boys slaughtering animals for fun? Hint: try my house.
The spring bear hunt is necessary to help manage the already growing	bear population. They are at the top of the food chain and if the population is left unmanaged, all other critters below them will suffer as a result. Thank you.	3/10/2022 5:29 PM	Online Survey

Spring bear hunts are immoral and anachronistic. They were originally organized at the behest of the timber industry to stop hungry bears from stripping bark from trees to reach the sweet sap underneath. But the efficacy of this approach has never even been documented! So the WDFW is now expected to permanently approve a spring bear hunt simply to "preserve a hunting tradition," if we are to believe hunting advocacy groups. This is circular reasoning at its worst.

Regulating that mother bears and offspring are not to be "taken," does little to mitigate the cruelty of this hunt. Bears that are starved from hibernation emerge to a world that is just starting to provide the year's food. Hunting bears at this time just increases the stress these animals are under and makes it more difficult for mother bears to raise their ofspring and for their offspring to thrive.

And mother bears are killed very year 'by accident' regardless!

If you want to make the spring hear hunt permanent, show us how much money we are saying the timber companies. Then we can decide if we want to sell our souls for that amount

If you want to make the spring bear hunt permanent, show us how much money we are saving the timber companies. Then we can decide if we want to sell our souls for that amount.

harvest but lots of deer shot to keep them from eating your food. Please stop pretending your hands have no blood on them. We just are more realistic about our effect on the landscape. Fully support spring bear. Animal cruelty is bad. Bears deserve life, and hunting is cruel. Is upport spring bear hunt in Washington and the proposed amendments I am fond of Bear and also think there are to many in some areas creating infanticide by large males. This hunt is necessary and justified. Civilized people require more than sensory pleasure to require justification for behavior. Joking about bear meat tacos shows how little hunters care about wildlife. I oppose the bear hunt! Animal cruelty is bad. Bears deserve life, and hunting is cruel. Go vegan. I strongly oppose any and all bear hunts! Please protect the bears. Mike knows what he's talking about. Be like Mike. Support the proposed amendments. I oppose the spring bear hunt. Who are we to decide what the bear population is? Animals adapt to their environment while humans destroy everything in its path. I support the bear hunt. Ban the bear hunts! Ban the bear hunts! Ban the bear hunts! I oppose the spring bear hunts! I oppose the bear munts! I oppose the bear hunts! I oppose the beave mentioned hunt I support the proposed amendments. The Bear hunt is necessary. Killing these beautiful bears is just plain wrong! They belong here on Earth along with all the other animals and also us humans. God put us all together for a reason and we are to live together in peace. Wanting to kill these beautiful animals is so upsettling and so wrong, who are you to take a life? They have just as much right to live here as we do, so let's leave them alone and live in harmony. Ban all the bear hunts! I oppose this proposal! Ban the hunts! I oppose the spring bear hunt. I oppose the spring bear hunt. Even though hunters like to use the excuse that hunting is less cruel than factory farming, hunting is not an alternative to factory farming. If everyone hunted, the forests would be empty within a s More than 100 million animals are reported killed by hunters in the United States each year (far short of the roughly 25 million animals slaughtered every single day in the US). That number does not include the millions of anim which kill figures are not maintained by state wildlife agencies. Every year in the United States more than 4,000 tons of lead are shot into the environment by hunters. No to a spring bear hunt.		Online Survey

I live in WA and I support the amendments proposed to WAC 220-415-080 I oppose the spring bear hunt!!! That is protecting our wildlife, every animal is precious. I absolutely DO NOT support a spring bear hunting season. WDFW claims that by restricting hunting to adult male bears that the females and cubs will be fine is wishful thinking. Not only are many novice hunters unable to tell the difference, but their are numerous documented cases of HUMANS being mistaken for bears and being shot and even killed. It is simply wrong to harass and hunt animals when they have young, and it isn't only the bears that will be disturbed by this activity. Recreational hunting isn't really hunting, it's just killing. The sole motive of hunting used to be to obtain food or hides for survival. However nowadays hunting is used mostly for "recreation" (i.e., fun). When did needlessly killing wildlife become an acceptable pastime? Spring bear hunts are immoral and anachronistic. They were originally organized at the behest of the timber industry to stop hungry bears from stripping bark from trees to reach the sweet sap underneath. But the efficacy of this approach has never even been documented! So the WDFW is now expected to permanently approve a spring bear hunt simply to "preserve a hunting tradition," if we are to believe hunting advocacy groups. This is circular reasoning at its worst.

Regulating that mother bears and offspring are not to be "taken," does little to mitigate the cruelty of this hunt. Bears that are starved from hibernation emerge to a world that is just starting to provide the year's food. Hunting bears at this time just increases the stress these animals are under and makes it more difficult for mother bears to raise their ofspring and for their offspring to thrive.

And mother bears are killed very year 'by accident' regardless!

If you want to make the spring bear hunt permanent, show us how much money we are saving the timber companies. Then we can decide if we want to sell our souls for that amount.

We are better than this, Washington.

I support continuing this season with the amendments a a resident This is so unique now as society becomes aware of what actually goes on hunters are thankfully now in the minority hence why lots of it is hidden and underground no hunter (which is a killer) is not supported by the majority of society you only have to look at all the movements that are happening all over the world. If the killers truly believed it is supported, why do they never go on mainstream tv so they can see the TRUE response by the people. They never do because they know what response they would get. I oppose this as a resident I support these amendments as a resident. I oppose continuing this season with the amendments as a resident Oppose. Anybody with a heart or empathy would not justify these killings they would not have the courage to stand up in a public arena and justify these killings it's all hush hush and hidden If they believe they would get public support, then	3/11/2022 12:04 AM	Online Survey instead of sending in comments (where they can hide their face) be brave enough to stand in public and receive your response by the average person. If anybody is so sure they could do this, why do I not see this in public????? That is Killing for pleasure, are those the kind of people you wish to encourage and support?

What do they harm out of bear season, thought about that. Its scientific fact that behaviour of harming animals tends to lead to harming humans.
Start bringing these out into the real public arena in person and you will see the REAL support of the majority. Any killings would not be justified and you know this, otherwise it would not be done behind a screen and hidden faces. Bring it	3/11/2022 12:08 AM	Online Survey out into reality, live Let's see then how much this is supported. I would respect anybody that had the courage to do this but so far, nobody has that is the real question really why not in public?

I oppose to Bear hunting. There are many indirect effects on hunting bears that WFWD must to consider, for example: hunting male bears can promote infanticide counterstrategies from the surviving male population. (Agrell et al. 1998, 3/11/2022 12:52 AM Ebensperger 1998, Palombit 2015). Female bears to avoid infanticidal males restrict foraging behavior and carry a nutritive cost (Steyaert et al., 2013). The reproductive costs imposed by habitat and diet selection constraints could decrease female reproductive success (Wielgus and Bunnell 1994, 2000; Wielgus and Bunnell 1994, 2000; Wielgus and Bunnell 1994, 2000; Wielgus and submined 1994, 2000; Wielgus and 1997, 2001; Swenson 2003; Gosselin et al. 2015, 2017). Cub survival was negatively correlated with the removal of males from the population (24% and 42% lower 0.5 and 1.5 yr after harvest, respectively; Swenson et al.1997). Finally, harvest by hunting is usually selective. In North America, hunters may show preference toward more giant and older bears, primarily males (McLellan and Shackleton 1988, Kohlmann et al. 1999). The disproportionate removal of older and male bears could disrupt population. This is SCIENCE proving bear hunting because of permanent ecosystem damage. BAN SPRING BEAR HUNTING bears could disrupt population age and sex structure, but it could also artificially select smaller and less reproductively successful phenotypes. As you can see, there are multiple adverse effects on bear behavior an	d survival when humans selectively induce a bear control population. This is SCIENCE proving bear hunting because of permanent ecosystem damage. BAN SPRING BEAR HUNTING

I am shocked to hear that a bear sanctuary should be shifted to a killing place for bears. I strongly oppose the spring bear hunt because there is no evidence that the black bear population really is robust. And even if it would be what allows humans to kill black bears who lived the past decades in peace. It is only a human atrocity without any real purpose. Hunting for fun is not a purpose and will not serve the strongly needed conservation of biodiversity. I hope for a rethink and for conservation of the beautiful landscape including its precious animal inhabitants which are the reason for tourists to come there.

I oppose WDFW's proposed amendments to WAC 220-415-080. 3/11/2022 4:23 AM Online Survey

Spring bear hunts are immoral and anachronistic. They were originally organized at the behest of the timber industry to stop hungry bears from stripping bark from trees to reach the sweet sap underneath. But the efficacy of this approach has never even been documented! So the WDFW is now expected to permanently approve a spring bear hunt simply to "preserve a hunting tradition," if we are to believe hunting advocacy groups. This is circular reasoning at its worst.

Regulating that mother bears and offspring are not to be "taken," does little to mitigate the cruelty of this hunt. Bears that are starved from hibernation emerge to a world that is just starting to provide the year's food. Hunting bears at this time just increases the stress these animals are under and makes it more difficult for mother hears to raise their offspring to thrive

Open the spring bear hunt. The anti-hunters need to remove their feelings from decision making. Look at the numbers. Analyze the data from the biologist and make decisions off the science not emotions. Bear numbers in many areas are	3/11/2022 5:07 AM	Online Survey high and calf/fawn survival rates are low. It makes sense to open the season. I would further propose to remove the lottery and make it an open season for every hunter in the state.

In the strongest possible terms I oppose this proposal. As someone who lives and uses on a year round basis the landscape in the Twisp River valley the notion that WDFW feels like it's somehow OK to orphan Black Bear cubs strikes me as the height of poor wildlife management. One of the things I do in my backyard of Little Bridge Crk, a tributary of the Twisp River, is to hike extensively off trail in the spring and it's a rare treat to see a cub. To imagine any cub to be orphaned simply because a hunter would like to 'harvest' the mother is just unconscionable. If this proposal is allowed to proceed it would erode further WDFW's credibility as a wildlife management agency in the eyes of the public.

These words don't and can't do justice to just how strongly I feel about this. Please reject this proposal.

Sincerely, Matt Firth

Twisp River

Bears bring in more money to the state through ecotourism than by hunting. As bears are slow to reproduce and young bears require their mother to feed and teach them for the first year of their live. A dead bear thus breaks the cycle of	3/11/2022 6:35 AM	Online Survey keeping the species thriving and in the spring would lead to orphan bears. We, the human species, are morally obligated to coexist with animals on earth. It is not for us to "harvest" another living creature. Please consider Ghandi's words	-

I TRULY OPPOSE TO SPRING BEAR HUNTING! 3/11/2022 7:06 AM Online Survey

I believe the Washington Fish and Wildlife Department should ban bear hunting because of permanent ecosystem damage. Hunting bears causes a negative indirect effect on wildlife balance that has not been contemplated in this rulemaking decision, amend WAC 220-415-080. First, hunting male bears can promote infinanticide counterstrategies from the surviving male population. (Agrell et al. 1998, Behensperger 1998, Palombit 2015). Female bears to avoid infinanticidal males restrict foraging behavior and carry a nutritive cost (Steyaert et al., 2013). The reproductive costs imposed by habitat and diet selection constraints could decrease female reproductive success (Wielgus and Bunnell 1994, 2000; Wielgus et al. 2001). Also, bear hunting can indirectly contribute to negative population growth through increased juvenile mortality (Swenson et al. 1997, 2001; Swenson 2003; Gosselin et al. 2015, 2017). Cub survival was negatively correlated with the removal of males from the population (24% and 42% lower 0.5 and 1.5 yr after harvest, respectively; Swenson et al. 1997). Finally, harvest by hunting is usually selective. In North America, hunters may show preference toward more giant and older bears, primarily males (McLellan and Shackleton 1988, Kohlmann et al. 1999). The disproportionate removal of older and male bears could disrupt population age and sex structure, but it could also artificially select smaller and less reproductively successful phenotypes. As you can see, there are multiple adverse effects on bear behavior and survival when humans selectively induce a bear control population.

We also need to remember that bears play an essential role in the ecosystem. They help in seed dispersion; black bears eat a lot of fruit and vegetation, so they are amongst the main seed dispersion agents. Also, bears provide indirect

My last word in this discussion is that most of the U.S. population does not participate in-game or sports hunts. Wild watchers are nearly twice as numerous as hunters, according to a 2016 U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS). Why be no-hunters relegated to minority status or excluded entirely when deciding how wildlife is managed? It is antithetical and unequal that one group would be granted greater access to wildlife management because hunters make a significant monetary contribution to wild conservation. I firmly believe that other actors with vast expertise in wildlife conservation, such as Native Americans and International conservation societies, should participate in these wildlife decisions.

I oppose the spring hunt. The experience with the limited hunt in Ocala National Forest has shown that:	3/11/2022 7:16 AM	Online Survey
1) the hunting quota is rapidly exceeded. (In Ocala, less than 12 hours!)	-,,
2) females were killed indiscriminately and their cubs left to die
3) there has been no decrease in the human-bear conflict. This is due to the encroachment of humans on bear habitat and on the humans feeding bears (they are not pets!).
The proper way to manage bears is to preserve their habitat and educate humans.

The spring bear hunt proposal would open the door to the killing of bears who are particularly inherable because they are coming out of hibernation. It would result in the killing of mountains and have never had any issues with a bear. The spring bear hunt for the common of the proposal would open the door to the killing of bears who are narrisugate. No hunter can tell the difference between a female and male bears. Bears are foraging for food to feed their cubs. hey forage w/o their cubs. A rule banning the killing of female bears is meaningless since none can distinguish between female and male bears when hunting. Washington has in place a summer/fall bear hunting season that starts on upons the summer of the proposal and in November 15. That 3.5 month period provides plenty of opportunity for the killing of bears. A spring hunting season is not needed and should be rejected by the Department. Thank you. I am concerned and humbly submit that the allowance of a spring bear hunt is unethical due to resurgence of hungry bears who are in their most weak and vulnerable position. In my opinion this is not hunting for meat while they are at	3/11/2022 7:54 AM	Online Survey their leanest. This is like going to an arcade and bears are set up for the kill. Unfortunately I am also concerned that the reinforcement of making sure mother bears are not taken is a difficult task to enforce. The department is expecting people to be honest and responsible by bringing in the bear remains for inspection. This is impossible and I believe there will be those who break the law. In order to protect nursing mothers and cubs this change must not go into effect.
Wildlife organizations would see an increase of orphans. I DO NOT SUPPORT THE SPRING BEAR HUNT.

This is SO cruel. The bears just wake up then are shot and killed because they are infringing on "our" lands. We need to learn to live with them and assume the risks. That is the humane thing to do. And the thought that this hunting	3/11/2022 8:08 AM	Online Survey becomes indefinite every spring instead of a year by year basis is SO corrupt. Where is the democracy in that vote. Bullies forced that vote to fruition. With this world in such a horrible chaotic state why can't we at least hold on to some

No Spring Bear hunt! Presently many bears have been pushed out of their territory by expensive logging, based on lumber prices. They are relocating and pregnant females and those with cubs make easy targets. Good grief, where does	3/11/2022 8:30 AM	Online Survey respect for a species begin and end? A female and cubs as a target in the spring. How desperate are hunter bragging rights? Allan First off, I want to thank the commission, and everyone else gathered this morning and being involved in this process. Regardless of which side you are supporting today. Healthy disagreement, diversity of thought, and ability to put differences aside to discuss important topics objectively, is at an all time low in our modern day society. With that said I signed up today to support the Spring Bear season in 2022 and moving forward until science tells us otherwise. As someone who lives in upper Kittitas County, I am blessed to live in bear country. I love seeing these majestic creatures and living among them. I want nothing more than the longevity of black bears in our state. As well as all other wildlife that was here before us. It is sad that I feel I need to say that because over the last 100 years hunters have put more time, money, energy, blood, sweat and tears into these animals and pursuit of these animals than any other group of civilians. But if you listen to a lot of the proposed ideas on the comment threads, we are labeled as bloodthirsty, sow with cubs targeting monsters. And that is a stain on my name I am unwilling to accept because for me, family,	3/11/2022 8:30 AM	Online Survey and the men and women I surround myself in this community are anything but those things. Looking at the History of the North American Model of wildlife, an animal that is hunted and has open seasons when sustainable harvest is available is a valued animal. Let's continue to support bears and other wildlife by maintaining legal, regulated, sustainable harvest when populations allow.

Hunting is not about machismo, that is a warped view held by opponents who are unwilling to compromise. Hunting is a vital management tool for wildlife conservation. The spring bear hunt encourages the take of more aggressive male bears that can contribute to the death of young cubs, vulnerable as they emerge from their dens. Bear meat is also used for food and the fat is rendered down for a variety of uses. I support the spring bear hunt and amendments proposed	3/11/2022 8:31 AM	Online Survey
